Buddhists Halt Saigon Protests

Continue Election Demands

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) Buddhist leaders united Saturday night in a demand for quick replacement of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government with a civilian regime, then showed their power by stopping cold riotous demonstrations that had racked Saigon for a week.

Moderates and conservatives joined in a call for "an elected congress in a very short time, a platform where the people can speaking about the sovereignty of their nation." No date was specified.

Spokesmen previously have urged that Ky's plan for a National Assembly election in 1967 be executed within two to five months.

To Coordinate Move

The hierarchy of the faith professed by most Vietnamese appealed in a proclamation to "all the people wishing to show their opposition to the government" to contact Buddhist headquarters for the coordination of activities, adding, "We will dictate the time and the place."

Building up toward pressures of a type that toppled the governments of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963 and Premier Nguyen Khanh in 1965, the leaders announced the formation of an action committee called the Viet Nam Buddhist Forces.

youth affairs, and Thich Ho Giac, director of lay affairs.

Events of war and politics mingled elsewhere:

Highlighting military activity was a B52 strike that silenced a Viet Cong communications center in the D Zone jungle 35 miles northwest of Saigon. Newly rigged to carry up to 60,000 pounds of explosives, the big jets attacked in Indian file rather than in the formation flight normally used in high-level saturation bombing.

Saigon Quiet

Though Saigon streets were calm for a change, there was an antigovernment demonstration by about 500 students at Dalat, a mountain resort 140 miles northeast of Saigon. Vietnamese rangers broke it up, using tear gas and firing shots into the air.

More than 700 foreigners, American civilians and off-duty military personnel, drew quarters at U.S. Navy and Marine installations in the Da Nang area after being removed from the city itself as a precaution.

Navy river boats and Marine helicopters handled the exodus. The crystallization of Buddhist hierarchal opinion was disclosed after Ky appointed a new commander for the 1st Corps area in an apparent attempt to reassert his government's authority against the challenge of dissident elements in that area — South Viet Nam's five northern provinces.

The new commander is Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh, 39, who has served since 1964 as inspector general of the Vietnamese joint general staff in Saigon. Nominally listed as a Roman Catholic, he was among the officers who took part in the overthrow of Diem, a Catholic. He was born in Hue, a center of the northern agitation.

Dinh flew to Da Nang to succeed Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, whom the junta appointed last month only to find he shared some of the sympathies of the dissidents. Chuan had succeeded Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, regarded as a potential political rival of Ky, who was dismissed March 10.

Halt Protests

There was at least a temporary break in the antigovernment, anti-American demonstrations in Saigon streets.

The new order fell first on about 1,000 youths who started from the Buddhist Institute for the streets. The director of lay affairs, Thich Ho Giac, seized a microphone and called:

"You must come back. You are our people now, you must respond to what we say. We will tell you when to demonstrate, we will tell you what time."

The crowd obeyed readily, returning to the institute.

What effect another government change might have on the course of the war was a matter of speculation. Some U.S. officials believe a regime dominated by the Buddhist religious factions would attempt to seek a quick end to the fighting.

That might mean a demand — in line with a Viet Cong-North Vietnamese goal — to remove all American forces from the country.

American newsmen and photographers were impeded Friday by U.S. military police under orders which the American Embassy said it issued at the request of Vietnamese authorities, to keep them from scenes of violence.

U.S. officials said Saturday night these orders have been rescinded. Under a new one, they said, the MPs will ask newsmen to show identification and tell them that they enter trouble areas at their own risk.

Ill-Fated Liner Towed In

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Passengers said Saturday that engine room trouble plagued the cruise ship Viking Princess throughout her six-day voyage in the Caribbean.

They said they were so used to the problems that, when the air conditioner and lights shut off shortly after midnight Thursday, people in the ship's night club kept right on dancing. Others lit matches so the musicians could read their scores.

It was several minutes before smoke began leaking under the door, crewmen were spotted in lifejackets and the dancers learned that fire had broken out in the engine room.

"The engines had switched on and off at different times during the trip," said Annette Moore, 28, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Engine Repaired

"We got into Aruba (first stop on the tour) 10 hours late," said Isabel Radsha of Gettysburg, Pa. "We had only four hours ashore and while we were in Aruba we knew they made repairs to the engine."

"It — the lights going out — happened the night before," said one of the men in the night club, William Sharp, 22, an Indianapolis school teacher. "We kept on dancing."

Otto Thoresen, 52, captain of the $16-million luxury liner, admitted at a press conference that "minor adjustments" to the engines were made during the cruise. But he said the engines were in excellent condition.

"I know there was a nothing wrong but there are so many moving parts in an engine room," he said. "Nobody knows why a ship catches fire."

The order to abandon ship was given within minutes after crewmen discovered they could not control the fire. The first lifeboats were over the side and away from the ship within 15 minutes, the last ones within an hour.

Two Passengers Die

Only two persons died, both apparently of heart attacks. The rest, 494 passengers and crew, was rescued. Only 25 were treated for minor injuries.

When Thoresen stepped ashore at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, the survivors applauded him. They said his gallant seamanship and that of his crew averted a disaster.

The smoldering, fire-blackened ship remained afloat Saturday south of Cuba in the Windward Passage where the fire struck. A Liberian freighter evidently interested in salvage took her under tow. Her destination was not known.

"You have such a responsibility to look after the passengers and the ship," said Capt. Thoresen, a solidly built man with a red handlebar mustache. He has been at sea since he was 15.

INSURANCE COMPANY ELECTS NEW HEAD

EAST MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Shearn Moody Jr., Galveston, Tex., insurance financier, was elected president of the Republic Investors Life Insurance Co. of East Moline at a Board meeting Saturday.

Glen A. Jordan, formerly of Silvis, Ill., and now of Hot Springs, Ark., was named chairman, director, chief executive officer and acting president.

The directors also elected Dale R. Major of Houston, Tex., executive vice president.

World Christians Celebrate Easter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The tragedies of war, disease and want were momentarily set aside throughout the world this weekend as Christians observed their holiest and most joyous feast — the anniversary of Christ's Resurrection from the dead.

In Rome, the seat of Catholicism, the bells of the ancient city's 450 churches pealed in the early morning to signal the dawn of Easter Sunday.

In Jerusalem where Christ was tortured and died on the Cross, thousands of pilgrims chanted holy litanies at the site of His tomb.

Pilgrims Gather

The voices of the faithful gathered in the cavernous old Church of the Holy Sepulchre and there replaced the screams, shouting and fistfights that took place among overenthused pilgrims on Holy Saturday.

In Moscow, Communist crowds hooted and whistled as Alexei, patriarch of Moscow and all the Russians, ushered in the holy event by leading a candlelit procession around the cathedral in the Soviet capital.

In Rome, Pope Paul VI led an Easter vigil service Saturday night in St. Peter's Basilica, Christendom's largest cathedral.

Elsewhere in the world, millions of Christians prepared for sunrise and other religious services to mark the day.

Easter Service In Jerusalem Marred By Fight

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP) — Police threw a cordon around Christ's tomb to hold back a mass of worshippers Saturday as religious fervor turned to near hysteria at a ceremony of holy fire. Fist fights broke out.

A screaming throng inside the Church of the Holy Sepulchre shattered police lines as pilgrims struggled to be first to light candles from a flame lancet out of Jesus' grave.

The ceremony of holy fire is the supreme moment for Eastern rite Christians celebrating Easter in the Holy City. The flame symbolizes Christ's resurrection.

About 10,000 Arab, Armenian and Greek Orthodox Christians jammed the cavernous 800-year old church.

Every one held a bundle of candles or a bronze lantern and struggled to be first to light his candle from the flame spurting forth from two oval apertures in the sides of the tomb.

A score of firemen held hoses at the ready as flames rapidly spread from candle to candle.

The crowds were so dense outside the church that priests trying to open the church's massive doors had their robes torn and hats knocked off. One old prelate sank to the floor in a faint.

A Roman Catholic holy fire ceremony earlier in the day proceeded without incident.

TWO DIE IN PLANE CRASH BELLEVILLE, ILL. (AP)

Two St. Louis residents were killed Saturday when their single-engine airplane crashed in an abandoned shale pit mining area about four miles northwest of Belleville.

Dead are Harvey McCall, 28, the pilot, and Marilyn Berger, 26.

State police said the two-seat plane apparently nosed over before crashing. The nose of the craft was buried in the ground.

LBJ Views Policy Problems

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson dug into foreign policy problems Saturday — presumably with emphasis on Viet Nam — and the whole First Family whirled through preparations for Easter Sunday worship and festivities.

The womenfolk were all set on their finery selections and the Easter dinner menu. In the morning the Johnsons are to go to 10 o'clock services at St. Barnabas Episcopal church at Fredericksburg.

The President, who had pronounced Good Friday a day off, was back at work at his desk in the ranch house library Saturday morning.

Deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming said at the White House press center in San Antonio that Johnson read a number of foreign relations documents that came down from Washington and had been on the phone with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presidential assistant Jack Valenti in Washington.

Fleming didn't deny that Johnson discussed the Vietnam hot spot with Rusk. But he said the White House had nothing to say about Viet Nam and newsmen could make their own assumptions about the nature of the talks.

There was a bit of paper work, too: a couple of appointments of a U.S. attorney and U.S. District Court judge in Washington State, and a proclamation Rusk was commissioned to read at the unveiling of a statue of Sir Winston Churchill at the British Embassy in Washington.

Following church Sunday, Fleming said, the Johnsons plan to lunch at the ranch and then have Easter dinner later in the day.

Actor George Hamilton, Lynnda Johnson's current boyfriend, arrived Friday night and apparently filled out the cast of weekend guests at the ranch. Lucie Johnson's fiancé, Patrick J. Nugent, arrived from Washington with the family on Thursday.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. Gerald Nugent, is at the ranch too. Her husband is a Marine lieutenant in Viet Nam and Lucie attended the wedding last year.

San Francisco, 5,000 were expected to climb Mt. Davidson for sunrise services. Among them is expected to be Gustave Bauer, 77, who has attended all 43 previous services on the 938-foot hill.

On the effects of nicotine and smoking on the central nervous system, and sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences, ended Saturday at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Dr. Smith said he undertook the study to look for more information on possible constitutional and psychological differences between smokers and non-smokers.

He said the association between smoking and disease, including lung cancer and heart attacks, "although now widely accepted, is not uniformly interpreted."

Some researchers think there is a direct cause. Others suggest smokers might be more susceptible to lung cancer "not because they smoke, but rather because of some other factor, or factors, which smokers share."

On standardized personality questionnaire tests, "nonsmokers tended to have higher scores on perseverance, and tended to have lower scores on extroversion, maladjustment and sex interest than smokers."

On ratings given by their associates or peers, the nonsmokers were found, relative to smokers, "to be more tender, self-effacing, considerate, obedient, shy, orderly, responsible, and conscientious." They also appeared to be "less attention-seeking, demanding, assertive, gregarious, happy-go-lucky, gay, and crude."

Smokers, Dr. Smith added, looked upon smoking and smokers more favorably than nonsmokers. Smokers considered the evidence linking cigarettes with lung cancer to be less convincing.

He declared, "the study applies only to those cigarette smokers and nonsmokers among the nursing students, college and high school students included in the survey. It would be completely unwarranted to draw any sweeping conclusions beyond these groups."

Britain Given Power To Stop Oil Shipments

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council Saturday night called on Britain to use force, if necessary, to halt tankers believed to be carrying oil for Rhodesia.

The vote was 10-0 with 5 abstaining. Those abstaining were Mali, Uganda, France, Bulgaria and the Soviet Union.

The vote came after a full day of debate in which African countries, with the support of the Soviet Union, sought unsuccessfully to broaden a British-sponsored resolution to authorize the use of force to topple the rebel government of Ian Smith.

Greek Ships Cited

British Minister of State Lord Caradon had insisted that the 15-nation council limit its decision to measures to halt tankers headed for Beira, Portuguese Mozambique. The British proposal mentioned specifically two Greek-owned vessels, the Joanna V now in Beira port, and the Manuela which Caradon said might arrive at Beira within 24 hours.

Just before the vote, Greek Delegate Aristotle J. Phyras told the council the owners of the Manuela had given his government assurances it would not go to Beira. A statement in Athens said the master of the Manuela had been warned he faces severe penalties if he unloads his cargo at Beira.

In London, meanwhile Britain's Conservative party accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of double-dealing in placing the oil tanker problem before the council. Enoch Powell, opposition spokesman for defense, said Wilson had assured the House of Commons he would not throw a naval blockade around Beira.

Main provisions of the approved resolution included the following:

—An appeal to Portugal not to receive oil at Beira to be pumped through the pipeline from Beira to Rhodesia.

—An appeal to all countries to insure the diversion of any of their vessels believed to be carrying oil for Rhodesia.

—The authorization for Britain to use force.

A series of African amendments failed by votes of 6-0 and 7-0. Nine votes were required for approval.

Say Discoverers Of Sunken Bomb Had Close Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two-man crew of the miniature sub that found the H-bomb off the Spanish coast had a brush with death during the recovery operation.

Officials who reported this in their first full discussion of the 80-day search which ended successfully Thursday disclosed also that:

The sub Alvin actually found the bomb as it maneuvered backward down an undersea slope.

The bomb broke loose during one attempt to drag it to level ground and was lost a second time for nine days.

The bomb had shifted from the initial discovery depth of 2,500 feet to 2,900 feet, and was only a few hundred feet from a yawning Mediterranean Sea canyon which reached more than 4,000 feet down.

Had the currents continued sweeping the bomb, it would have slid into the canyon and probably never been retrieved, they said.

"We would have been completely out of luck," one official said.

The H-bomb, spilled from a B52 in a collision Jan. 17, was located for the first time March 15 as the sub Alvin inched backward down a 70-degree slope.

The vessel had to go in reverse because the angle of the hill prevented the crew from seeing forward over its nose.

The near-disaster came a few days later as a surface vessel began pulling the bomb up the slope toward a more secure level.

The parachute attached to the weapon billowed in the rippling current and settled like a fishnet over the Alvin. The chute cloaked the sub's portholes.

"The crew has shaken up," a spokesman said. "Those men could have been anchored down there to that bomb, and there would have been very little we could do to get them."

The buoyant little sub has about 50 pounds thrust, he explained. The bomb weighs about eight tons.

Fortunately the Alvin was able to back out cautiously from under the potential snare.

Air Viet Cong Overthrow Plot

WASHINGTON (AP)—A document reportedly captured from the Viet Cong shows some Red plans for using the current anti-government demonstrations in the Communist drive to take over South Viet Nam.

"Viet Cong agents should make every effort to infiltrate street parades by winning the sympathy of the leaders," is among the instructions reported from the Viet Cong document obtained in Saigon.

"Banners, slogans, leaflets, explosives and grenades are to be kept ready at all times so that the agitators can work in a state of confusion," according to the report.

Not All Reds

Washington authorities cautioned Saturday against labeling the demonstrations against the Ky government as primarily Communist-initiated. They said the main political opponents of the military regime are against the Red takeover. But the Communists are seeking to exploit what they can to their advantage, authorities said.

U.S. strategists are keeping a nervous watch for any major upsurge in the internal South Vietnamese turmoil over the weekend.

One danger area is Da Nang, where U.S. sources would not rule out the possibility of battling soon between loyal central government troops and 1st Corps dissidents. American civilians and U.S. servicemen on leave have been pulled out in anticipation of possible trouble.

In Saigon, the situation was reported by the State Department to be calm as of Saturday night.

The captured Viet Cong document, U.S. sources said, is one

ESCAPED CONVICT SHOT IN HOLDUP TRY

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Hugh Collins, 23, of Chicago, who escaped Friday from a Missouri State Prison guard, was shot to death Saturday during an attempted holdup at a St. Louis confectionery.

Police said Collins was shot by Henry Berkowitz, 58, owner of the confectionery who grabbed a 38-caliber revolver from under a counter when Collins opened the cash register.

Berkowitz said Collins walked into the store with his arms folded as if he were concealing a weapon and ordered Berkowitz's wife and son into a back room.

Collins was serving a five-year sentence for armed robbery at the penitentiary at Jefferson City when he was taken by a guard to Moberly, Mo., to talk to his attorney about his previous escape from the Missouri jail.

Police said Collins broke his handcuffs and forced the guard to drive him from Moberly to St. Louis. Collins fled when the car ran out of gas in St. Louis.

ELKS LODGE 682 provided a bit of Easter cheer Saturday afternoon to child patients at Jacksonville's two general hospitals. Clarence Birdsell and Glenn Preston provided transportation and candy for the giant Easter Bunny who passed out treats to the children and stuffed animals for the smaller tots.

Just to increase the general difficulty the average bridge player has with defensive signals we come to the trump echo. When you echo (play high-low instead of normal low-high) in a side suit you are either showing strength or an even number of cards in the suit. The trump echo on the other hand is used to show an odd number of cards. The reason for this is that if you only hold two trumps you may not want to spare the higher one to show two but when you have three trumps you can almost always afford the middle one of three.

Here is a good example of the trump echo at work. East wins the heart opening with his ace and returns the ten of hearts (suit preference signal) as discussed in yesterday's article.

West ruffs this second heart and is careful to ruff with the five spot, not the three. Then he leads back the three of diamonds. South hops up with dummy's ace and leads a spade. East takes his ace and this time West drops the three spot.

He has completed a trump echo so that if East has been watching the spots as all good players should he knows that his partner holds another trump. East leads a third heart and West ruffs for the setting trick.

Just for the record, South could have made the hand if he had run off four club tricks and discarded the last two hearts from dummy but of course he wouldn't know that East was sitting with exactly three clubs and the lone ace of spades.

Report Increase In Activities Of Cass Court

BEARDSTOWN — As a result of the increase in business at the Cass circuit clerk's office due to the new judicial article and its provisions, the amount of money handled has increased ten fold.

Clerk John Collins reports that $73,068.54 was handled in the circuit court fund between January 1, 1965 and December 31, 1965. This compares to an amount of slightly more than $7,000 handled before the new judicial act was implemented. A total of 1,496 cases were filed in the clerk's office for disposal through the Cass County circuit court. This included 30 divorces, 77 probate cases, 296 small claims cases, one condemnation suit, 13 felonies, 192 misdemeanors, 50 family cases, 768 traffic cases, five jury trials, 38 law non jury cases, eight chancery cases, four magistrate non jury cases and 14 "miscellaneous remedies."

Of the more than 700 traffic cases, many are handled in the clerk's office with the others going through the courts.

Associate Circuit Court Judge Fred W. Belcher holds court at the courthouse in Virginia Monday through Thursday, and in the Lincoln courtroom in the city hall in Beardstown each Friday.

He was congratulated by Governor Otto Kerner, principal speaker at the annual Goodwill Industries dinner meeting, held April 5 at the St. Nicholas Hotel in Springfield. Secretary of State Paul Powell presented the award.

Mr. Baker has been employed in the public relations department at the Springfield office since September 1965.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week made its biggest gain of the year and Wall Street talked about the traditional spring rally.

In the past 60 days there have been 36 gains in the industrial average against 33 losses, but this thin margin has been enough to give the month a reputation as a winner in stock market circles.

It helps when stocks are buoyed by a series of earnings reports which show the first quarter in the current year substantially higher than the previous year. This has been happening in 1966.

Stocks also were ready for a rise because of the very steep decline that began in February and halted only in March. Many leading issues had sunk to a level where they again became attractive to institutional investors, such as mutual funds and pension funds, which have been chafy about the market most of this year.

A conspicuous example of this was American Telephone, the most widely held stock of all. The market was closed Friday for the holiday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week advanced 6.1 of 349.5, its biggest rise since the week ended July 31, when it gained 7.2.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 14.47 to 945.76, but still was about 50 points below the historic peak it made Feb. 9 before the market began its long slide.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 14.47 to 945.76, but still was about 50 points below the historic peak it made Feb. 9 before the market began its long slide.

Volume for the week totaled 38,868,577 compared with 40,468,780 for the full five-day week previous.

As the week ended, the market had notched six consecutive daily advances. Of 1,542 issues traded, 979 rose and 414 fell.

The week began with the favorable backdrop of news that the nationwide rail strike had ended. Steel production was up. Record earnings were reported by many companies. The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported, in effect, that "inflation is here."

The bond market began strongly Monday only to reverse itself and close at its low for the week.

Treasury bonds reacted sharply and eased corporate bonds their top prices.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—Hog market prices ended the week on a firm note, bolstered by sharply curtailed offerings at Chicago and a fewer offerings at the nation's 12 principal stock yards. The Friday top at Chicago was $23.10 for butchers.

The week's average price of hogs was $23.50 compared with $22.80 the previous week and $17.70 a year ago per hundredweight.

The 12-market supply was 228,800, or 3,000 less than the previous week's 231,000. The same week a year ago saw 218,100 sold.

Slaughter steers closed the week 50 cents to $1.00 higher, and heifers advanced a quarter less on good demand and sparse marketings. Receipts were 13,900 at Chicago compared with 24,100 the previous week and 27,300 a year ago. The 12-market total was 156,000 compared with 183,100 and 153,800 a year earlier. Average steer cost was $28.61 last week, and average weight 1,139 pounds.

Sheep prices were steady at Chicago and carlot dressed lamb advanced $2.00 for the first price gain in 10 weeks. The 12-market total was 39,400 compared with 43,400 the previous week and 30,100 a year ago. Chicago handling 1,900 or 100 more than the previous week and 500 more a year ago.

Carrollton Funeral Home Has New Owners

CARROLLTON — Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hires of Carrollton have purchased the Simpson Funeral Home from Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hines. The new owners took possession April 1 and are now operating as the Hires Funeral Home.

The late S. E. Simpson became a funeral director in Carrollton in 1887. His son, the late Lynn Simpson, and his wife moved to the present funeral home in 1935. Several years later they moved to a smaller home and the business was sold to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hines, who continued operating it as the Simpson Funeral Home until the present time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines are now making their home in a trailer near the home of Mrs. Hines' mother, Mrs. Lynn Simpson of Carrollton. Mr. and Mrs. Hires and their three children moved to the funeral home Monday.

Hires, who is presently serving a four-year term as treasurer of Greene County, attended Eldred Grade school and a graduate of Carrollton High School. He received his professional training at the St. Louis College of Mortuary Science, and graduated in 1952. He is also a former member of the Carrollton City Council in which he represented the first ward.

His wife is the former Niela Garrison and the couple were married in 1948. Their children are Vicki, 16, Richard, 14 and Randy, three.

Parley Called.

The 15-member council was convened Saturday morning at Britain's request to deal with the specific issue of preventing oil shipments from reaching Rhodesia via Portuguese Mozambique's port of Beira. The debate was resumed at a later session.

British Ambassador Lord Caradon said the situation was urgent because one oil tanker, Bhamo V, is now anchored outside Beira, while another tanker, Manuela, is believed headed for the port.

He warned that the economic embargo of Rhodesia will be unavailing unless the council acts promptly to give Britain authority to detain ships with oil believed destined for Rhodesia.

Cass Farmers Hope For Rain

BEARDSTOWN — It is very dry in Cass and adjoining counties and farmers are hoping for rains soon.

However, the weather has been good for plowing and many here declare they can't remember when the farmers in this area had more plowing done by April 1.

Often when conditions of a similar nature existed—plowing at a particularly dry time of the year—the saying has been that "many an owl is changing farms these days."

The difference is now, these same farm operators say, is that the sandy soil, freshly plowed, does "move a lot" but now it is so dry that "even the black dirt is on the move."

One Beardstown man who made a weekend trip to the Peoria area reported driving through rains as he came home. He was hopeful his own farm land would be benefited, but was disappointed upon arrival at his farmstead. Not a drop of rain fell here over the weekend. He commented:

"It is nice to be way ahead on plowing, but not so good to be way behind on moisture."

Steele Cash And Papers From Home In Pike County

PITTSFIELD — Authorities here are investigating a theft at the home of Paul Taylor, Jr., north of Pittsfield on Route 16. The entrance and robbery occurred reportedly between 9:15 a.m. and 12 noon on Thursday.

Family members reported the house thoroughly ransacked. Five twenty dollar bills and important papers were taken.

Sheriff Charles Lowery talked to persons in the vicinity but no one was seen entering or leaving the residence, which was not locked.

tion were William H. Wolfe of Roodhouse with 150 votes, Vander Knight, Roodhouse 149 and Duane Bell of White Hall, 507. Allyn Nichols, who received 796 votes, was unopposed as a candidate to fill the unexpired term.

Other candidates were Mrs. Eva Sawyer, who received 355 votes, Eugene Breckon 351, William (Bill) Admire 341 and Clifford H. Wyatt 458.

Beardstown.

At Beardstown, where 884 voters turned out to elect two rural and one city representative to the board, Harold Kuhlmann, William Fischer and Robert Huggs won election.

Kuhlmann was returned to office with 546 votes and Fischer garnered 523 votes as a new member. Both are representatives of the rural area. Darlye Pilger, also seeking reelection as a rural member, was defeated. He received 372 votes.

A total of 443 votes were counted for Robert Huggs, who will replace 10-year member Ray Walls as city representative on the board. Walls did not seek reelection. Maurice Lehman received 380 votes in an unsuccessful attempt to win Walls' seat on the board.

Virginia Unit 64.

At Virginia, where three members were elected, the incumbents were roundly defeated by three newcomers: Charles (Bud) Hopkin, Leland L. Sweetman and Ruth Kirby.

Unofficial returns list 751 votes for Sweetman, 640 for Hopkin and 621 for Kirby.

The defeated incumbents are Kathleen Snow, who had 334 votes, Carl Peterson 311 and William F. Dodds 252. Peterson was secretary of the board.

A total of 983 ballots were cast and two write-in votes were counted.

Coble Hurles One-Hitter

Crimsons Divide
2 With MacArthur

Rich Coble's one-hit, shutout pitching and Ken Miller's hot bat powered Jacksonville to a 2-0 Capitol conference victory in the first game of a twinbill, Saturday afternoon, before Decatur MacArthur went wild in the nightcap to post a 19-1 romp.

Coble, JHS's ace junior right hander, allowed only a single in picking up his second decision of the spring in the opener, while Miller scored both runs, one on a roundtripper, to provide the fireworks. Only the first game of the pair was a conference tilt, leaving the Crimsons 2-0 in the loop. JHS lost its first in five games in the nightcap.

MacArthur owned the second game from the start. The Generals found the hitting range, pushing across 11 big runs in the third inning, sending 15 men to the plate before Jacksonville could get them out.

Coble was in command of the opener despite some control trouble. He fanned seven batters to get him out of a pair of jams he got into via the seven walks he doled out. Coble closed in a flash, getting the first two batters he faced in the seventh before walking the bases full. Coble whiffed the third-place hitter for the final out.

Only Run Needed
Miller scored the only run the Crimsons needed in the first frame. The centerfielder stroked a one-out single, advanced to third on Ron Coleman's ground rule double over the left field fence and scored on a boot by the third baseman.

The only other run of the game crossed in the third when Miller poked a line drive over the center fielder's head and came all the way around for the home run.

The second game was tight only until the top of the third. In that frame MacArthur broke loose from its day-long hitting slump and for all purposes settled the doubleheader split. The big hit in the frame was Randy Bates' three-run homer that rolled almost to nearby Lincoln Elementary school.

After MacArthur scored 11 times in the third, aided by three walks and two errors, the Generals added to the bulge with seven more in the fifth, after which the game was stopped because of the ten-run ruling.

The lone Crimson run in the second game came in the fourth when the hosts gathered two of their four safeties in the contest. Coleman started it with his second double of the afternoon, then scored on Max Murrin's two-out single to right.

This Writer Would Have Koufax
In Bullpen, Mays Batting First

NEW YORK (AP) — If Earnshaw Cook were managing the Los Angeles Dodgers, he'd make Sandy Koufax a relief pitcher. If he were the San Francisco Giants' manager, he would use Willie Mays as his leadoff batter.

But Cook isn't managing either team — or any, for that matter — so Koufax, job as a starter and Mays' No. 3 spot in the line-up are secure for the present.

Cook is a metallurgist turned baseball scientist, and he's written a $9.95 book, "Percentage Baseball," in which he expounds some revolutionary ideas that strike at some of the most worshipped institutions in the game.

Basing his conclusions on three years of research into 750,000 situations, Cook proposes to: — Start the game with a relief pitcher and pull him after two innings for a pinch hitter. Then bring in a pitcher, new considered a starter, for five innings and after another pinch hitter, finish with another reliever. — Discard the platoon system and play the eight most productive players on the team, arranging the batting order so that they bat in descending order of ability — as determined by Cook's scoring index.

Eliminate Sacrifice
—Eliminate the sacrifice bunt except for pitchers considered automatic outs.

If a team would ignore the heresy connected with these ideas and follow them for an entire season, its scoring potential could be increased by about 280 runs, Cook says.

That extra offensive potency, he adds, would be enough to win the pennant for a high second-division team.

It also would have been enough to allow the hapless New York Mets to win at least half of their games — or 81 — last season instead of the mere 50 they actually did win.

These ideas, mathematically supported by a abundance of formulas, charts, tables and graphs, are proposed by Cook in a revised edition of his book, a labor of love set for publication Monday by the MIT Press at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The book was published on a smaller scale in 1964.

Not His First Book
"Percentage Baseball" is not the first Cook book. He previously wrote "Basic Open Hearth Slag Control," "Engineering Properties of Heat Resistant Alloys," "A Quantitative Study of Austenite Formation," "Open Hearth Steel Making," and "Hollis Snooze: Adventures in Duck Hunting."

In turning his literary interests to baseball, Cook, an avid Baltimore Oriole fan, has received much assistance from Wendell R. Garner, chairman of the department of psychology at Johns Hopkins University.

In writing the book, he also employs quotes from Ecclesiastes, Francis Bacon, Rudyard Kipling, Gilbert and Sullivan, Euclid and Ty Cobb.

But none of these has brought Cook to his revolutionary proposals. The study of thousands of baseball games was enough to do that.

What'd He Say
"Since its inception," Cook writes, "baseball has intuitively developed conventional forms of strategy which are more closely associated with whimsical, managerial inspiration than with the most probable interactions of play for specific situations."

"Why, it may be asked, is the field manager not as interested in learning as much about the best odds for baseball as he probably knows about the odds for craps and poker? Why rely on Stengese, for example, when he can reap far greater rewards from Pascal and Gauss?"

Canadiens Whip
Maple Leafs 2-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Third period goals by Claude Provost and Bobby Rousseau broke up a shutout duel and gave the Montreal Canadiens a 2-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the second game of their Stanley Cup playoff semifinal Saturday night.

The triumph gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with the third game scheduled for Tuesday at Toronto.

The game was scoreless until midway through the final period when Provost finally beat Toronto goalie Terry Sawchuk on a short drive from the right side.

Until that goal, Sawchuk and Montreal goalie Gump Worsley had dominated play in the penalty-filled game.

Less than seven minutes after Provost put the Canadiens on top, Rousseau provided the insurance goal when he whipped Ralph Backstrom's rebound past Sawchuk.

DELIVERY: Jacksonville High pitcher Rich Coble is shown firing a high, hard one to Decatur MacArthur's Randy Bates. Coble blanked the Generals in the first game, Saturday, but MacArthur ran wild in the second tilt for a 19-1 victory over the Crimsons.

Baseball Openers
Reveal New Faces

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Atlanta and Anaheim are big league, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale are filthy rich and Mickey Mantle still is a $100,000 pinch hitter as the baseball season opens.

If the weather man behaves Monday and Tuesday the two-day program in 10 cities should attract about 320,000 curious fans. The largest turnout, 50,983, is expected to jam Atlanta's new stadium for the Braves' debut against Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

When Koufax and Drysdale finally agreed to let Walter O'Malley keep Chavez Ravine and signed for $240,000, the Las Vegas odds-makers quickly shuffled the morning line to reestablish the Los Angeles Dodgers as favorites in the National League. They can't agree on a regular outfield job with Washington and Baltimore's opening day catcher will be Andy Etchebarren, a newcomer from Rochester. The Angels think Rick Reichardt is ready to start living up to his big bonus.

Two Monday Games
There will be two Monday games, the customary Presidential special in Washington and the traditional opener at Cincinnati.

Birdie Tebbetts, manager of the Indians, is thinking pennant and is leading with Sam McDowell, one of the best pitchers in the league. Pete Richert is supposed to go for the Senators before a capacity crowd of 46,019.

Cincinnati also will pack them in to the tune of some 30,000 to watch the revamped Reds, minus Frank Robinson but plus Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun, make their bow against the Mets in the only duel of new managers. The Mets, encouraged by a fine spring, probably will send Jack Fisher against either Pappas, the new pitcher from Baltimore, or Sammy Ellis.

Rest Open Tuesday
All of the other teams open Tuesday in an eight-game program that includes night action in Los Angeles, St. Louis and Atlanta of the National League.

Sam Mele's Minnesota Twins will open the season at home where they closed it last October in the seventh game of the World Series. They expect about 27,000 to watch Jim Grant or Camilo Pascual face Catfish Hunter of Kansas City.

The defending world champion Dodgers also will be at home but they will be playing a night game against Houston before 35,000. The probable pitchers will be Roberts of the Astros and Claude Osteen.

San Francisco will be at home Tuesday afternoon with 42,500, in the stands for the game with Chicago. Ernie Broglio is due to work against Juan Marichal and Willie Mays is due to work out on Ernie.

St. Louis opens for the last time in the old park against the Philadelphia Phillies. Cardinals fans, 24,000-strong, will get a chance for a quick evaluation of the controversial winter deal that sent Bill White and Dick Groat to the Phils and brought Alex Johnson and Art Mahaffey to the Birds.

Gala In Atlanta
There will be a gala in Atlanta with the ambitious Pittsburgh Pirates, who think they have a real shot at the pennant, mixing with the transplanted Braves.

The Yanks, still embarrassed by that sixth-place rebound of 1965, hope to start rebounding against Detroit which has been picked to win the pennant in some circles. Maris is back but Mantle still is out and Tony Kubek has retired. The Yanks probably will draw about 30,000.

Stankys in White Sox, a hot team in Florida, will open at Comiskey Park against the Angels before 25,000. Boston, still shuffling players in deals, will be at home to the powerful Baltimore club that has added Frank Robinson to its line-up since 1965. The crowd probably will be between 15,000 and 20,000.

Everybody is predicting tight races in both leagues. That is the standard procedure at this time of the year. This time, however, it appears to be on the level. If anybody runs off and hides it will be a surprise.

Believe Terrell
May Be Headed
For New Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Terrell, Chicago's Luckless holder of the World Boxing Association heavyweight title, may be headed for a brighter ring future, including a possible championship match in Houston's Astrodome.

The 6-foot-6 Terrell, who seems to have found a new home — and a blue chip adviser — in Atlantic City, N.J., soon may defend his title in Houston against Zora Folley, Doug Jones or Germany's Karl Mildenberger.

The Associated Press also was informed Saturday by a source close to the guitar playing Terrell that there was no chance of any immediate fight between the WBA champ and the controversial but generally accepted heavyweight king, Cassius Clay.

Such a bout at Toronto Maple Leaf Garden in mid-May was proposed by Harold Ballard, the arenas executive vice president.

"Terrell is interested, and I'm hopeful the bout can be arranged," Ballard was quoted.

"It won't happen," said the Terrell confidante. "I know a contract for the bout was sent Terrell through the mail, but the situation still is the same as when the original March 29 Clay Terrell bout in Chicago was canceled."

Clay's public outburst against being reclassified 1-A in the military draft rubbed out the March 29 bout here, and Terrell's former association with Bernie Glickman squelched plans for a February Clay-Terrell title bout in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Terrell recently was incorporated in New Jersey, where his chief advisers is George Hamid Jr., owner of Atlantic City's famed steel pier and prominent sportsman.

The lanky fighter made a big hit with Atlantic City fans during his training for the Clay bout at Pleasantville, N.J., and is expected to make his home at Atlantic City.

15 Americans In Japanese League

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese professional baseball season opened its 130-game season Saturday with 15 American players scattered among the 300 athletes on the rosters of the clubs in the Central and Pacific Leagues.

The winners of the two six-club leagues will meet in the best-of-seven Japan series in October.

Masonori Murakami, the first Japanese to play in the U.S. major leagues, was back home with the Osaka Nankai Hawks of the Pacific League. He left the San Francisco Giants to return to Japan.

Joe Stanka, formerly of the Chicago White Sox, changed his mind about retiring and joined Taiyo Whales of the Central League. Stanka was a 26-game winner with the Hawks when they won the pennant in 1964.

Ken Hadley and Jack Bloomfield, hit home runs in the Hawks' 7-4 opening day victory over the Tokyo Orions in Osaka. Hadley's came with the bases empty and Bloomfield's with one on.

Ken Aspromonte, who played with several big league teams in America, homered for the Taiyo Whales as they beat the defending champions, the Yomiuri Giants, 6-3. Shoichi Kaneda, the Giants' ace pitcher, was knocked out of the box in this Central League game.

Pitchers Hold
Upper Hand In Training Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Major League pitchers held the upper hand in exhibition baseball games Saturday, two days before the start of regular season.

In low scoring games, the St. Louis Cardinals beat Kansas City 2-1, Baltimore downed the New York Mets 2-1, Houston defeated Kansas City 3-1, Washington whipped Boston 4-2 and the Chicago White Sox defeated Cincinnati 5-1.

The victory gave the Lakers a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-seven series as the teams moved to Los Angeles tomorrow night for the fifth contest.

Tito Francona's ninth inning pinch double scoring Alex Johnson lifted the Cash past the Athletics. Ray Washburn of St. Louis and Roland Sheldon of the A's pitched shutout ball for the first four innings. Rookie Joe Hoerner was the winning pitcher.

Wally Bunker won his fifth of the spring against one loss for Baltimore. He worked five innings, yielding the Mets' only run in the fourth on a single by Johnny Lewis and a double by Jerry Grote. Andy Etchebarren and Brooks Robinson drove in the Orioles' runs.

Bob Bruce turned in a neat pitching effort for Houston. He hurled scoreless ball for eight innings, and the Tigers got to Carroll Sembera for their lone tally in the ninth on singles by Don Wertz, Al Kaline and Dick McAuliffe.

Chisox Whip Reds Again
Joel Horlen and Ed Fisher combined to limit Cincinnati to four hits as the White Sox boosted their record against the Reds this spring to 7-0. More costly than the defeat to Cincinnati, though, were injuries to catcher John Edwards and pitcher Billy McCool.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia took part in a suggest with the Pirates winning, 15-7. The winners had home runs by Roberto Clemente, Jose Pagan, Donn Clendenon and Gene Allen while John Briggs and Rich Allen connected for the Phils.

The San Francisco Giants came up with seven runs in the fourth to down California 9-3 in the first game in the Angels' new Anaheim ball park. Joe Gibbon was the winning pitcher.

The Chicago Cubs, behind pitching of Bob Buhl, Ted Abernathy and Bill Faul, blanked Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League 5-0.

The Astros, playing their second game of the day, met Minnesota in a night game at Houston. The New York Yankees were at Atlanta and Cleveland at Los Angeles in other night games.

Hawks, 107-95

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Darrell Imhoff joined old reliable Jerry West and Elgin Baylor in a final half Los Angeles spurt that crushed the St. Louis Hawks, 107-95, Saturday night in the Western Division playoff final of the National Basketball Association.

Imhoff matched West's eight points in the period and also hauled in nine rebounds. Baylor added another 10 points.

Baylor finished with 26 points. Walt Hazzard had 15. Zelmo Beatty led the Hawks' attack with 22. He was followed by Cliff Hagan's 19 and Bill Bridges' 17.

For the second straight year Russell will receive the Silver basketball awarded annually by the Chicago Tribune.

Hogan Fires Back Into Contention

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Baby-faced Tommy Jacobs came charging out of the pack and tied defending champion Jack Nicklaus for the third round lead in the Masters Golf Tournament with an even par 216 Saturday, but the loudest cheers went to a great champion out of the past, Ben Hogan.

The amazing 53-year-old Hogan, in semiretirement for 10 years, beat Arnold Palmer in a head-to-head duel and shot a 73 for 218, which left him in the thick of contention.

Palmer, with Hogan commanding the bulk of the gallery of close to 50,000, settled for a wild, scattershot 74—a strange mixture of birdies and bogeys—also for a 218.

Jacobs, 31, from Bermuda Dunes, Calif., played in semiretirement in cutting Augusta National's sprawling par 72 layout down to size with a mechanical 70.

Jack Bogeys Last 2 Nicklaus, the 26-year-old Golden Bear from Columbus, Ohio, youngster player ever to win this title at 23 in 1963 and author of the record 271 score last year, bogeyed the last two holes for a score of 72.

He led the field through most of the calm, almost windless day but at the 17th he blasted long and went into a trap and at the uphill, 18th he drove into the trees at the right and then pitched onto the fairway, reaching the green in three and two-putting from about 10 feet.

Meanwhile, disaster struck quickly for the two surprise second round leaders, Paul Hareney, the prematurely graying home pro from Sutton, Mass., and Peter Butler, the British Ryder Cupper.

Hareney bogeyed four holes in a row—9, 10, 11 and 12—and finished with a 76 for 219. Butler took double bogeys at the third and seventh for a nightmarish 79 and a score of 222.

Removes Red Numbers Nicklaus' late blowup removed all the red numbers—the color designating sub-par performances—from all the big scoreboards dotting the 6,980-yard course.

Nicklaus and Jacobs have a one-stroke lead over wily Don January of Dallas and Gay Brewer, going into Sunday's final round. Palmer and Hogan are another stroke behind.

It presages a dramatic wind-up to this tournament fabled for spectacular finishes.

January, 38, who hasn't had a tour victory in almost two years, came to the final hole with a chance to tie for the lead. He poled his approach into a trap at the front of the green, blasted out 15 feet from the cup and missed the putt for a bogey.

January finished with a 71 for 217.

Brewer, pug-nosed battler from Dallas and a sensation of the winter tours, birdied the final hole for a 73 and 218.

Three Tied at 219 Three players were tied at 219, still very much in the dog-fight.

They were dudish Doug Sanders, seeking his third straight tournament triumph, 75; Jay Hebert, elder of the two golfing brothers from Lafayette, La., 73, and big, long-hitting Ray Floyd of St. Andrews, Ill., 74.

It looked as if Nicklaus planned to retake full charge of the tournament until he arrived at the 155-yard, par 3 12th hole, which is flanked by a stream of water and backed up by a hillside and yawning traps.

He dunked his tee shot into the left rear trap. When he tried to get out, he moved the ball only six feet, still in the trap, then recovered to within eight feet, missing the putt for a double bogey 5.

Just about this same time, Jacobs was making an equalizing shot on the 475-yard 13th. There he boomed a four-wood shot, hole high 40 feet to the left of the pin. Then he sank the putt for an eagle 3.

Jacobs Steady Jacobs, who tied the U.S. Open record for a single round with a 64 at Washington, D.C., in 1964, also sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie at the eighth but lost a shot at the 10th, where he hit an approach into the bunker.

The rest of the time, he was steady par.

The 216 leading score is the highest that ever has led this 32-year-old classic. Previously, the worst 54-hole score for a leader was 215 blows by Henry Picard back in 1938.

Most of the day's excitement centered on the battle between Palmer and Hogan, a grim contest between the new king of golf and the old.

The grim Hogan—termed the "Wee Ice Man" by adoring Scots—never faltered under the pressure, although at times it appeared that his legs, shattered by an automobile accident in 1949, might not last all the way.

IC Track Team May Improve

"This looks like a good year on deck for track and field events at Illinois College," coach Bill Merris says as he prepares for the Blueboys' first meet on April 16.

"We have more participants than in any of the previous eight years that I have been here coaching at the college. We have one of our toughest schedules ahead of us, but we should be strong in the weights and in some other events. The 100 and 220 dashes will probably be our weakest spot," Merris says.

Thirty-three hopefuls reported for the first workouts in March, and the Blueboys now have their strongest 25 practicing daily.

Senior letterman Charles Davis (Chapin) returns after setting the school's shot put record of 43'5" last year; Davis also won first place for the event in the 1965 Prairie College Conference meet.

Marion Owens (East St. Louis) returns after a one-year lay-off and he expects to better his school record of 132.7 in the discus.

In the javelin, Calvin Smith (Westport, Conn.) and Owens are expected to be strong competitors.

Sophomore Drew Clark (Arenzville) one of last year's season stand-outs, returns for the distance runs. With a larger squad, Clark will compete in his specialties of the mile and two mile runs, and he will not enter the 440 and half-mile.

Sophomore Paul Bumgardner (San Jose) is expected to show improvements in his specialties of the quarter-mile and half-mile.

Other Lettermen

Other returning lettermen are Joel Harmon of St. Louis; Loren Hutchinson of West, Clayton, Mass.; and Jim Malerich of Lincoln.

Junior Dick Clough of Carrollton, who last year was the stand-out in triple jump and who also threw the discus, has been disabled with mononucleosis. The pole-vaulters are a freshman John Clough of Carrollton and freshman Robert Fitzgerald of Springfield.

Freshman Dale Hill of Pinckneyville and freshman Leigh Porter of Woodstock, Ill. will be seen in the hurdles competition.

The high jumpers are Clark, freshman Alan Bradish of Jacksonville, and freshman Richard Daly of Chicago.

Among those expected to be seen in the dashes are Joel Harmon; freshman Ivan Huston of New Boston, Ill.; Loren Hutchinson, junior John Kilhoffer of Buffalo, Ill.; and sophomore Robert Quillman of Pinckneyville.

The distance men are Clark, freshman Bill Brooks of Chicago, freshman Jeff Lane of Springfield, Ill., and freshman Ray Lloyd of Naperville, Ill.

The middle distance runners are Paul Bumgardner Robert Brantley of St. Louis, Mo., and the old antenna and install a new one of the most modern design. A new five kilowatt transmitter, manufactured by the Gates Radio Company in Quincy will be installed to deliver a stronger signal to the Jacksonville area.

Temporary antenna have been installed and there will be no interruption in service during the construction period, WLDS general manager Gerry Cassens said.

"The installation of a new transmitter and associated equipment should give area residents the clearest, noise-free signal on the FM band," Cassens said. "The new antenna will employ circular radiation, developed less than a year ago, and will provide greater signal strength, particularly to FM portable and automobile radios."

WLDS-FM is one of the pioneer FM stations in Illinois. It has been on the air continuously since March, 1948. An increase in public interest in FM radio has more than tripled the audience in the past three years.

Because of frequency allocation problems in the AM radio spectrum, Jacksonville cannot have a full-time AM station. WLDS-FM is the means of providing full-time radio service to the Jacksonville area with sports, local news, and music during the evening hours.

Cassens said that the new equipment should be in operation in about thirty days after equipment tests are completed.

The Current Runs Deep

For some weeks the public has been exhorted, as usual, to "blossom out for Easter." Having heard the changes rung so often on this theme, the hypothetical man from Mars might suppose that getting decked out in spring finery was the very essence of the Easter celebration. He might also draw the conclusion that the Easter bunny was the central figure in the drama.

This is not said in cynicism, nor in a sour effort to deride the faith of the scores of millions of Americans who celebrate Easter. Belief in the Resurrection, and in its promise for mankind, still runs strong and deep. Easter clothes and the Easter bunny and other secular customs that have grown up about this holy day are no more than bits of foam dancing on the surface of the stream.

Yet it is true that these superficial aspects of Easter tend to distract attention from the great current of belief that continues to pour down the valley of Christendom after 2,000 years. It is easy to become engrossed in the glittering surface of the stream, but there is a surge of hope and conviction running deep beneath the surface. That is what the holy day of Easter is all about.

Vital Training Plan

In-the-job training for a small group of "hard core" problem youths is in trouble with a labor union. The union sees this as a threat to its members and is opposing further development of the program.

The apprentice experiment, operated last summer under the Manpower Development and Training Act, involved a small number of potential trouble makers. All were school dropouts, young persons who had worked but a day or two in their entire lives. Under the program they learned to punch a time card, read a gauge, operate a machine — in short, to do a day's work. At the end of five weeks some stayed on the job, some went back to school, two applied for other jobs, one joined the army.

The program was considered a success, but it may not be repeated this year. Though the owners of the business are willing, the related union sees undesirable competition for jobs ahead.

In this case, the union is not large; neither is the field of work involved. A sustained program of apprentice training in this line of work might conceivably flood the market and jeopardize union jobs. That would not be fair.

Yet training America's youth for employment should have high priority. If one field of training will not bear further expansion, others that will can surely be found. The apprentice project itself is a worthy part of the war against poverty.

Dear Ann:

Could Use Change During Change

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: For years I have been hearing gruesome tales about the menopause. Now at last, I am learning, first hand, what the menopause really means.

It means a woman has reached the time of life when she feels that her 25-year-old furniture should be thrown out and the sunken mattresses replaced.

It means the house needs a little fresh paint and new wallpaper and those appliances which were wedding gifts aren't worth fixing any more.

It means that lazy buck she is married to should wake up and realize that his wife can't hit on 16 cylinders right and day and he ought to take her on a little vacation before she drops in her tracks.

I could say a lot more on this subject but your column isn't long enough. Just sign me — THE CHANGE IS HERE AND I COULD USE ONE.

Dear Lady: If you had written more, the column "would" have been longer. I'm sorry you didn't because you have something useful to say—and you know how to say it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our three-year-old daughter has no one to play with. We live in an apartment building which houses mostly childless couples and retired people.

Last month I enrolled Annabelle in a nursery school three afternoons a week. My mother insists that I've done a terrible thing. She said, "In MY day mothers enjoyed their children. They didn't try to get rid of them in every way possible."

I told her I'm not trying to get rid of Annabelle. I feel it is important for children to be with youngsters their own age and not spend their pre-school years in an adult world.

Am I wrong? My mother is making me feel guilty. —RO-15

Dear Mr. You are right. An exclusive diet of adult company is unhealthy for children. Don't argue with your mother—and don't feel guilty. Let her know that you will use your own judgment in these matters and that further discussion on "this" subject is pointless.

Dear Ann: Yesterday a group of secretaries was discussing broken engagements. There was some heated disagreement over what happens to the ring.

One of the secretaries said the girl keeps the ring if the fellow breaks the engagement, as payment for the time she spent on him. She also said if the girl breaks the engagement it is good manners to give the ring back. Right or wrong? —CARBON PAPER DOLLS

Dear Carbon: When a fellow calls it quits, tradition says the girl is permitted to keep the ring. Speaking for myself, I could never understand why a girl would "want" the ring of a fellow who didn't want her. When the girl breaks the engagement it is traditional that she return the ring. In "some" states it goes beyond tradition—it's the law.

Confidential to BEAN POLE: You need psychiatric help to learn how to cope with real problem. It's not his height.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Group Awaits Death On Malabar Coast

By CONRAD FINK

COCHIN, India (AP) — Here on the Malabar Coast, hidden among Cochin's palm trees and winding alleys, a community of nearly 2,000 Jews, a community unique in all Asia waits for death.

This is a small group of Orthodox Jews whose faith has survived for nearly 2,000 years in the surrounding multireligious Indian sea of Hindus, Moslems, Buddhists and Christians.

Only 89 members of this community that once numbered thousands are alive now. About 50 per cent are above age 70 and, as they say, have "taken notice from God."

Of the great families who came to southwest India centuries ago, just five are left: The Cohens, Koders, Robys, Halleghans, and Askennazys.

There are only three teen-age boys in the community, and the five girls of marriageable age, who must wed other Orthodox Jews, have no husband prospects. The last wedding was 5 or 10 years ago — no one seems quite sure.

Jackie Cohen, who cares for the synagogue, says with a pessimistic shrug of his shoulders that his community is doomed.

"A few more years, 10 or 15," he says. "Then we're finished. But what can we do?"

Old women, their pale European complexions contrasting with the browns and blacks of Cochin, sit talking in the sun. On the Saturday sabbath, men who would fit in New York, Berlin, or Warsaw walk slowly up and down, chatting with their neighbors.

How and when Jews first landed in India is disputed, but synagogue records say they arrived in 72 A.D., as traders and refugees from Middle East pogroms. Some historians say they came from Persia, others say they are descendants of escapees from captured tribes in Palestine.

Ezzikeel Roby, 13, one of the community's three teen-age boys, looks forward — with despair.

They are extremely well-educated by Indian standards and India needs educated youngsters. But Ezzikeel says "we won't get any promotions if we get jobs."

"We should go to Israel," another says. "It is the land of our people."

Ezzikeel's father, a physician, does not even hope for that.

"We should have left in 1947, when India became independent," he says. "Now it is too late."

India, founding economically and hard-pressed for foreign exchange, will not permit its citizens to take money abroad.

If the Cochin Jews go, they go penniless.

The Romans were among the first to use iron-gal ink, which was a muddy, gritty substance. The same sort of crude fluid is used today, except that it has been refined into a high-quality permanent blue-black writing ink.

Challengers Are Roasted Brown by Pat Brown

By WASHINGTON STAFF

WASHINGTON (NEA) — During his recent visit to Washington, California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown naturally had some thoughts on the Viet Nam war. But to the governor, any problem in Southeast Asia is of secondary importance compared to his primary concern, political opposition in California.

Consequently, any conversation about Viet Nam eventually drifted back to Sacramento, which Brown calls "a sort of Saigon of the West Coast."

The governor had a few choice remarks about each of his three main challengers. About Republican Ronald Reagan, Brown said: "He says he's a moderate, but in your heart you know he's Right."

About Joseph Christopher, former GOP mayor of San Francisco, he noted: "It's hard to describe where this man stands on the issues. But if you ever come across a fellow cutting down a redwood so he can get on the stump to make a speech on conservation, that's him."

About Los Angeles Mayor Yorty, who is challenging Brown in the Democratic primary, he said: "Los Angeles is the only city in the country with its own foreign policy. The mayor also advises the President on nuclear matters in between trips overseas. He's sort of a John Foster Dulles with suburbs."

A midwestern visitor who had some business with presidential aides wanted to call the White House when he got to town.

He reports he seriously thought of looking up the White House telephone number in the Yellow Pages—under "Presidents," of course.

Had the listing been there, incidentally, it would have come just after Podiatry, Porches and Poultry.

Robert Price, John Lindsay's deputy mayor in New York City, somehow has managed repeatedly to get involved in controversies which cloud his boss' relations with the press.

One way, sourly pressing note of this problem, says: "Price is the greatest public relations man since Genghis Khan."

In Alabama, the governorship race of Lurleen Wallace, wife of Gov. George C., is producing an inevitable crop of humorous slants. A typical turnaround: "Bedfellows make strange politics."

Edward McCormack, nephew of John McCormack, speaker of the House of Representatives and a principal candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial also receives a few verbal darts. His latest nickname: "The Man from Uncle."

The Shape of the Cross

The Empty Cross

Something Worth Living for

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Cross is empty. Long since they took the body of that Man and put it in a tomb. Those who find the whole understanding of God in that One who died there, talk of Him as living. They find hope in that empty Cross.

If life is empty, perhaps it's because we were afraid to love and so are afraid to live.

If life has seemed to say "No," perhaps it's because we are afraid to obey an eternal "Yes."

We choose our emptiness. It's the emptiness of so much that the world calls satisfaction. Or it's the witness of this empty Cross that in the end "nothing can separate us from the love of God." That assurance is the real shape of the Cross.

Fashion is what a woman has to be in so she doesn't feel out of things.

That has importance for a world in which there is so much emptiness, where so many talk of their years as meaningless, boring and pointless. There is a kind of jargon of cynicism, a litany of hopelessness in our time. It's odd that we should have so much and feel so little.

It's an irony that we should be so affluent and so impoverished.

Africa Is Ripe For New Coups

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. WASHINGTON (NEA) — Indications reaching here from sources in Africa suggest that conditions are ripe for military coups in several more African countries.

Two good bets: Guinea and the former French Congo, sometimes called Congo-Brazzaville, next door to the old Belgian Congo.

In the past year, seven of the new African nations have fallen to military overthrows. Ghana was only the latest in the series.

It's almost only way, say some American experts, that most of these countries can change governments. Most have constitutions which provide for orderly change through elections. The constitutions are usually ignored or evaded.

It's usually not possible for opposition political parties or other groups to overthrow the incumbents — who control the elections, the finance and the police.

So when groups in these countries become dissatisfied with the government, there's only the army to turn to.

What's back of these revolts? In some of the new nations, it's growing corruption. Sometimes it's economic decline which hits hard the families of the soldiers. Sometimes it's brutal political repression. In others, it's growing disorder and the inability of the government to keep order. In other cases it's regional or tribal conniving. Sometimes it's when the government threatens to cut back the army.

In Dahomey, Gen. Christophe Soglo's assumption of power took place with the tacit assent of leading Dahomean politicians who, themselves unable to reach an agreement to solve government problems, were willing to let Soglo and a cabinet of technicians try their hand.

In Nigeria, the military government which assumed power in January, has received pledges of support from all of Nigeria's major political parties as well as from labor unions, student and civic groups and local leaders.

When the army deposed Ben Bella in Algeria and arrested him for treason, analysts report, the only public reaction was one of relief (except for several Communist demonstrations).

In the Upper Volta, Lt. Col.

Sangoule Lamizana, army chief of staff, took over the government only after labor union strikers and demonstrators vigorously insisted on the removal of President Maurice Yameogo.

The take-over was so friendly that President Yameogo in resigning expressed extremely warm feelings of good will toward Lamizana.

In Ghana, since the army coup, there's been a freeing of political prisoners, a moderate government attitude and a considerable amount of public rejoicing over the ousting of Kwame Nkrumah.

As of now, U.S. government analysts see a difference between what's happening in Africa and the early military dictatorships that marred Latin-American history.

By and large, the African military coup leaders have been moderate. They've usually let the civil service run the government. They've cut down on tribalism. Where the previous governments have had strong Communist ties, they've cut these ties and moved toward the center. Most of the new governments are more friendly with the West. Most have said they intend to turn the government over to civilians. There's a tendency here to believe that most mean what they say—as of now.

FINDING THE WAY

The Miracle of Easter

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

"He is dead," they shouted. "He is dead," mourned his friends. "He is dead," echoed Nietzsche. "He is dead," cry the searchers for some kind of faith in this century. By every measurable standard in that day they were correct. He was dead. This was no fantasy, no suspended animation, no part in the play. He was dead.

This is why the miracle of Easter is exactly a miracle. It is the witness of the centuries that Christ is alive. It is the confidence that God is living. It is the certainty that neither the tombs of stone, nor of cruelty nor of indifference can hold the life of God.

It is a strange thing that men have done with death. Many religions have regarded it as a friend, a way of escape from the evils of the world.

Sometimes, Americans seem to have done this. When there is a refusal to confront the meaning of death, masking it until it looks as though it were only a sleep, death doesn't look like an enemy. The death on the Cross was death, not sleep, and death itself is death, not sleep.

This is the miracle of Easter, that death is overcome, that life is the ultimate.

That men should doubt this is not amazing. It is more astonishing that men should ignore this and thus miss the claims of life. It is more poignant that many who call themselves "religious" should keep the festival of Easter and miss the message of Easter. In the records of that first Easter there was the question, "Why do you seek him among the dead? He is living." It is the challenge to the contemporary Christian.

God is not dead; therefore he cannot be taken for granted. God is not dead; therefore we must expect to have him deal with us in the whole of life. God is not dead; therefore we must expect to meet him anywhere.

That's at the heart of the best of our educational efforts. It's at the center of confident working for peace. It's at the basis of our love of that which brings dignity and meaning to every human being.

There are tombs everywhere — graves that represent the death of hopes and faith and life. Our tragedy would be to take up our existence in the shadow of the tombs and be content with it. Is that what we are meant to be? Or are we to be alive, refusing defeat?

"God is alive." That's not an easy Gospel. It's the Easter insistence.

God is alive. That's not an easy Gospel. It's the Easter insistence.

Stimulating a Child

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Though our two granddaughters are both excellent readers, their 7-year-old brother reads so poorly that I recently started paying him dimes for every story he reads out loud to me. I already see an improvement in his reading interest. He now scans my shelf of children's books before he chooses one where he used to pick the thinnest one he could find. However, his grandfather says I may be doing the wrong thing. What do you think?

ANSWER: I think what you're doing is splendid.

I expect that your husband objects to it because he regards your paying of dimes to the boy as "bribery." Well, if we follow that view to its logical end, we'd also have to see "bribery" in farmers' fertilizing the roots of young trees, wouldn't we? Because the farmer uses the fertilizer for exactly the same purpose you're using dimes—to stimulate growth.

Somewhere I've previously remarked that "bribery" is the purchase of wrong action from somebody else. So I can see no bribery at all in what you're doing, inasmuch as reading your stories isn't immoral action by your grandson. All I can see is a concerned and resourceful grandmother's use of a child's interest in the dimes which buy 10-cent toys and ice cream to fertilize and enlarge that interest to include interest in reading. That's nourishment to me, not bribery.

Of course, the dimes aren't the real fertilizer. The real one is your pleasure in the stories your grandson reads to you. Your pleasure in them has stimulated his pleasure in them so that he's begun to enjoy himself, not just as a giver of dimes to you but a giver of delight to himself. That's why he now selects the stories you share more carefully. He wants to increase this mutual delight you both find in them by choosing the most promising stories he can find.

Readers of this column don't really have to write to me to ask me if some action they are taking toward a child is "wrong" or "right."

You yourselves can judge the worth of actions you take toward children by the spirit they express. This is the standard of judgment Jesus gave us when he said, "It is the spirit that quickeneth: the flesh profiteth nothing." Among other things, Jesus was a poet and talked in symbolic language. If, understanding him as a poet, we ponder this wonderful statement, we can find ourselves substituting the word "expression" for the word "flesh"—and so arrive at the real meaning:

"It is the spirit that matters: its expression in action matters not one bit."

Lower Fruit Prices Seen

Administration, Farm Organization Heads Far Apart In Policy

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Questions are being raised in some economic as well as farm circles about American agriculture's ability and will — under present government price policies — to expand food production to meet rising foreign aid demands.

The Johnson administration takes the view that agriculture has great flexibility of productive capacity. It holds also that its farm policies are adequately designed to bring forth needed production.

But the administration view is disputed by a number of farm spokesmen in Congress as well as by some farm organization officials. They contend the administration, in its fight against inflation, is failing to offer farmers strong enough price incentives to produce the food that is needed.

An answer as to who is right may never be supplied this year.

Nevertheless the poultry industry is still important to Illinois farmers for several reasons:

1. The poultry industry consumers feed grains equal to more than 700 million bushels of corn each year.
2. Poultrymen each year buy high protein feed equivalent to the soybean oil meal from 300 million bushels of beans.
3. Poultry and eggs compete strongly with beef and pork for the consumer dollars.
4. The production of eggs is still a big business in Illinois. In 1965 our poultrymen produced 1.8 billion eggs. At local market prices these eggs were worth about 50 million dollars, but farmers sold many of their eggs direct to consumers at higher prices.

Calhoun Blossom Time Expected April 23

A sure sign of approaching spring can now be seen throughout Illinois orchards as fruit buds begin to swell and open in a beautiful display of floral colors, says the Illinois State Horticultural society.

Peach blossoms are already in abundance in Southern Illinois around Anna and Carbondale and will appear in Central Illinois orchards around April 12-15. Depending upon weather conditions, the weekends of April 9 and April 16 should still see a number of peach orchards in bloom in the Southern half of Illinois.

Apple blossoms generally follow peach bloom by two weeks. If normal weather conditions prevail, the following bloom schedule can be followed:

Southern one third of Illinois—April 18-20.

Spring Outlook Meeting Here April 18th

The Morgan County Spring Livestock Survey and Outlook meeting will be held Monday, April 18, at Farm Bureau Hall in Jacksonville, starting at 7:30 p.m. Farm Adviser George Trull has extended an invitation to all livestock producers and all interested persons to attend.

Ed Lamb, of St. Louis Producers, will present information on the annual spring survey to determine livestock numbers and marketing intentions.

Bryce Kirtley, Extension specialist in livestock marketing, University of Illinois, will be present to discuss outlook for supplies, consumer demand, and livestock prices for 1966.

"With high livestock prices prevailing during the last several months, there is much interest among producers concerning what can be expected in the year ahead," Trull observed.

"Outlook meetings are held each year by the Cooperative Extension Service in April and September to enable farmers to have reliable outlook information which is necessary in planning their livestock programs."

To Open Heinold Hog Market In Greene

A new Heinold Hog Market to serve farmers in the Greene, Pike, Scott, Calhoun, and Jersey counties will be opened up at Carrollton later this month.

The yard will become the 23rd in the Heinold chain in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

The new market will bring to farmers in surrounding counties the services of the world's largest hog marketing organization.

The market will be located two miles north of Carrollton on alternate route 67. It will be managed by Kenny Butler, who has been in the Heinold organization for three years as assistant manager of the Girard market.

The market will buy hogs from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m.—Monday through Friday.

The 72 by 216 feet building, plus office space and chutes, will provide the most modern features in market facilities. It will provide enough pen space so that every farmer's hogs may be individually penned, automatic watering, and automatic manure cleaning systems.

Heinold is the largest country hog marketing organization in the world and handles more hogs in a year than any other terminal market except Omaha, the nation's largest.

Since it was founded in 1950, Heinold has shown tremendous growth. A single market in Kouts, Indiana, handled 35,000 hogs in 1950. This year Heinold expects to surpass the two million mark again.

Heinold sells to 85 different packers across the nation. Other Heinold yards are located at Rushville, Tipton, Royal Center, Liberty, North Manchester, Kendallville, Goodland, Kouts, and Burlington in Indiana; and in Galva, Grider, Leland, Henry, Hopedale, Marengo, Girard, Buffalo Prairie, Bowen, and Ohio in Illinois; and at West Liberty in Iowa.

The board members chose two Morgan county farmers, Richard Sayre of Franklin and Dale Brainer of Chapin to fill the vacancies created by the March 15 highway crash deaths of R. E. Stocker of Murphysville and John McFadden, route 1, Jacksonville.

Other officers elected to serve one year were Irl Henderson, Murphysville, vice chairman; Don Richardson, route 1, Jacksonville, secretary; and Dale Brainer, treasurer.

Marvin Zulauf of the district technical staff reported that the office is receiving many requests for assistance in the installation of erosion control structures, more than at any time in the history of the district.

Joe Graham, Morgan-Scott unit technician, has made a good recovery from serious injuries received in the same automobile accident on Route 36-54 east of Jacksonville. Since leaving Passavant hospital to convalesce at his home, 606 North Webster, he has continued to make marked improvement and hopes to return to his work this week, at least for a couple of hours daily.

Farmers Union Terms Milk Hike Inadequate

WASHINGTON — The President of the National Farmers Union has expressed disappointment with the Administration's dairy price support decision.

Tony T. Dechant said the "Decision to boost dairy farmers' income by a meager 26 cents per hundredweight, which is 29 cents below current market prices, will do little to stabilize dairy farming or the price of milk and manufactured milk products in the market place."

The Farmers Union had steadfastly sought an increase in the support price on manufacturing milk to $4.00 per hundredweight and an upward adjustment of the price of fluid milk commensurate with the increase for manufactured milk.

"Has Been So Low"

"The price support level for dairy products has been so low the past few years that farmers have done one of two things," Dechant said in a statement released here today.

"They have either gone bust or they have gone into other income producing activities such as cow beef."

"The result is a shorter supply of milk, which means higher prices to consumers, plus a continuing emigration to overpopulated cities."

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Let's talk about money and money management. You can't overhaul a tractor without tools and you need tools in managing money.

First — Farm and family records show where you have been, what you have done. They show the pattern of your income and outgo.

Second — Money plans or budgets chart the course you will follow.

Third — Net worth statements check your progress. Figure your net worth — what you own compared to what you owe — at least annually.

Divide your assets into three groups (a) liquid assets — bank account, cash, savings, grain, young livestock. (b) working assets — breeding stock, home furnishings, machinery and equipment and (c) fixed assets — land and buildings.

If your short-term loans and unpaid bills exceed your liquid and current assets you may want to consider refinancing some of your debts to longer term loans.

Look for hidden liquid assets such as life insurance cash value, dividends and matured government savings bonds.

Fourth — Insurance is the tool that protects you. Very few can save enough money to carry all of his risks so shift the risk by buying insurance and consider the cost as part of the cost of doing business.

Review your policies at least once a year.

Be sure you cover the biggest risks first. Liability claims can be much greater than collision losses.

Life insurance can protect the family, provide for education, furnish retirement income and be used to cover mortgages and other debts.

Make a money plan. They are needed to:

1. Plan credit needs and repayment.
2. Guide family spending.
3. Anticipate major expenses.
4. Help in decision making.
5. Planning forces us to look ahead and plan our future.

(More next week)

Now you should —
... Plant garden.
... Be careful of blisters.
... Change oil in engines.
... Clean air filters.
... Watch the kids play.
... Not neglect livestock.

Be thankful to the Lord for all, but most of all for Jesus.

Things you should keep in a fireproof file or in a safe deposit box:

Birth certificates, marriage records, insurance policies, wills, bonds, stocks, personal property inventory, military service papers, social security records, notes, important contacts, deeds and real estate papers.

If you use a safe deposit box keep a list at home of its contents.

Much of the profit in farming depends upon doing the right thing at the right time. If at all possible schedule foreseeable jobs and give priority to the most profitable ones.

The first suburn of summer carries a lot of prestige — but nobody ever made any points with the first frostbite of winter.

Praise is like seasoning — a little bit is better than a lot.

The overthrow came quietly last year in Mississippi when, for the first time, farmers in that state planted soybeans on more acres than they did cotton.

Let's Go Birding

March Moods

By Emma Mae Leonhard

March 12 was a typical March day: temperamental and moody. The sun and clouds seemed to be battling for supremacy. The sun often forced its rays through a crack in the gray clouds and built a bridge of light between the heavy sky above and the somber fields and forests below. Just as often and successfully the impenetrable clouds mended their cracks and closed the gates to the sunshine.

Over the surface of the lakes heavy blankets of fog were intermittently draped. At times they melted into dirty white mist sails that flapped in the wind and rode over the water. Blankets of fog or sails of mist, whatever they were, blotted out our vision.

Poor Visibility
We bird watchers call this weather condition poor visibility. We may hear bird calls or bird songs, but have to wait patiently for a break in the fog before we can find the birds. Sometimes the mist dissolves almost suddenly, and the visible world, with all of its scenes, opens up before us. Then we are lucky.

On that March 12, when we were trying to check the ducks on Lake Jacksonville, we weren't so lucky. At times we heard duck calls over the lake. Occasionally holes would appear in the blanket of fog, and we could get a peep at the flocks of ducks riding the choppy gray waves. Alas, before we could fix our binoculars upon them, the holes in the blanket of fog were mended; and again we were facing nothing except grayness.

Luck Changes
Then our luck changed. Temporarily the mist along the bank of the lake to our right cleared. The outline of trees became visible; then the individual trees themselves stood out before us.

Before long we saw a large bird, larger than a hawk or owl, perched near the top of a majestic tree. The atmosphere cleared so much that we succeeded in checking the markings of the bird; its white head declared it a mature Bald Eagle.

We turned to congratulate the birder who had been keen enough to detect this eagle, rare in our area. And we took time enough to exchange exciting remarks about our good fortune. Unfortunately we took out too much time.

When we turned for another view of this majestic symbol of our nation, we found only grayness again. The March fog had swallowed up the Bald Eagle, the tree, Lake Jacksonville, and the ducks.

EXPLORATION

Oh the beauty of the ocean, Waves and breakers all in motion. There's many things upon the shore, Crabs and clams and many more.

Crabs are funny the way they walk. Sometimes seashells seem to talk. The sand is warm between our toes. The sun beats down and tans my nose.

WALK IN SPACE

I put on my space suit And open the door, For I'm going to walk Where there is no floor.

I'll hold onto a rope And not walk too far, For fear that I might Bump into a star.

It's fun to float in the air Through the air, Without having to Always stand right there. I think it would be fun To walk all around And never, ever Have to touch the ground.

Prayer Poem

HE IS RISEN

By Mary Pence Claywell

Beyond the Quiet Garden, beyond the Rugged Cross, He bore, O weary World, He offered man, HOPE, PEACE, and LIFE forevermore. It was God's Will, His Son should die, and shed His Blood, upon The Tree, That we, O World, might courage have, to bear our own cross, willingly; And each of us, must bear his own ... there is no other way ... But we may CHANGE them for a CROWN, by bearing them ... today: Be not dismayed, though storms assail, and waves are riding high ... Look up! THE TOMB is EMPTY now ... HE'S RISEN IN THE SKY! Our cross, O World, is far from light, we faint, would cast aside ... But O how light, compared to that, on which, our Lord was crucified: His nail-scarred Hands and Feet, we know, were pierced for us, His ALL, He gave, To take away, the sting of death the CONQUERER ... of Tomb and grave: O hearken now, unto His Voice, and seek THE RISEN SON ...

And, TRUSTING, say as Jesus did, Thy Will ... not mine, be done: There's balm for all our sorrows ... and recompense for loss, Through Him, Who bore our scarlet sins, The MARTYR ... of THE CROSS! O World, take hold of FAITH, once more. He died for ALL, on Calvary;

FRIENDLY FUNNYFACE

By John Rankin

The shaggy and scrawny mouse-colored little dog had been wandering around in the residential section of town since early morning. Attracting little attention as he went from door to door—and with a woebegone look about him unlikely to attract the average dog fancier. He finally sought refuge from the sweltering heat under a lilac bush back of a house that somehow seemed safer and just a little friendlier than the rest.

Looking for Friends
Reluctant to leave his hiding place, yet hopeful of finding a friend among the happy, care-free youngsters, the timid little straggler hesitated a moment, his eyes lighting up with an eager, almost pleading look as he peered out toward the street.

Then as the bus started up and went on he ran out to meet a bright-eyed little fellow skipping up the walk to the house.

In a way that only kids and animals understand, the boy dropped to his knees to fondle the grimy, dust-covered dog tenderly and the dog licked the boy's ears and face in frenzied joy.

The boy's mother appeared on the porch just then. "Get in this house immediately, Todd Baker!" She said with firmness in her voice. "You've been told not to play with every stray dog that shows up in the neighborhood. Just look at you're clothes. They're a mess!"

Todd jumped up quickly to wipe his not-very-clean hands across the front of his grimy clothes and said, "Ah, gee whiz, Mom. This little guy is different. Come out and look at him."

Yes, He's Different
Mom came down the walk

then, her eyes squinting as she scrutinized the scraggy cur closely. "He's different all right," she said with a weak smile, observing his long ears that instead of hanging—stood straight out from his rather odd-shaped head. "And he's got a funny-looking face, too."

"Hey! Funnyface is a good name for him," Todd chirped. "But he's a friendly little guy, and I'll bet he's plenty hungry too."

"And in this terrible heat he's probably perished for water." Mom added with a sympathetic look. "Take the little fellow around back and give him a drink while I fix him a bowl of bread and milk. Then we'll give him a bath and let you're father decide later what to do with him."

At first Dad was uncertain when he got home and observed Funnyface playing in the yard with Todd. "He's just a stray pooch that somebody has kicked out to shift for himself," He told Mom with some misgiving. "To say the least he's not much to look at, so maybe we should turn him over to the animal shelter."

WHAT'S IT WORTH?

Space is a very empty thing. High above the earth, And nobody really knows; What that space is worth.

Sure, there planets, And some stars, But of what good is it to us Way out there afar??

On a planet we, May someday easily land, And give the aliens, A helping hand.

And useful resources May someday be found, On some planet, Spaceward bound.

SUCCESS AT LAST

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

When Russia's Venus II passed within 14,900 miles of the planet Venus on February 28, 1966, and Venus III crashed on that planet the next day they were the first successes the Soviets had had in sixteen tries at reaching Venus and Mars. Even these may be only partial successes because the Russians have not mentioned receiving any information from them.

By contrast the United States reached Venus, with Mariner II, and Mars, with Mariner IV, in only two tries. Both of the probes brought back important and startling information about the planets.

Out of the sixteen probes launched by the Soviet Union only five made it into interplanetary orbit. Three of these ran out of power before they reached their goal. As yet the Soviets have said little about the last two launched toward Venus in November 1965.

Like the U.S. the Russians launch their planetary probes first into a low parking orbit then off to the planets. The first two Russian probes, in 1960, failed to even get into orbit. Interplanetary shots can be launched only when the target planet (Venus or Mars) is lined up right. Scientists call this a "window." So the Russians had to wait a year before they could make their next try.

This time they did a little better. On February 4, 1961, they got their first probe, Sputnik VII, into orbit but it didn't make it into interplanetary space. The next Russian probe, Venus I, launched on February 12, 1961, got off on a course that would take it within 62,500 miles of Venus. But its radio failed when it was only 15 days out from earth.

During the next Venus window, the Russians tried three more shots at Venus (August 25, September 1, and September 12, 1962) but none got beyond parking orbit.

Mars Shots
The next two months saw Soviet attempts to reach Mars.

The first shot reached parking orbit but exploded when it was launched toward its target. The second was less spectacular, it simply refused to leave parking orbit. The third was Mars I which was launched on November 4, 1962. Its guidance system failed on March 21, 1963 and contact with it was lost.

Next came a series of three Venus shots. The first two got stuck in parking orbits. The third, Zond I, made it into interplanetary space on April 2, 1964. Zond I must have suffered the same fate as Venus I or Mars I because the Russians never reported it reaching Venus.

Trouble Comes Early

On November 30, 1964, just two days after the launching of Mariner IV, Russia also launched a Mars probe, Zond II. Right from the start Zond II was in trouble. One of its solar cell panels failed to open properly and so it had only half power.

As Mariner IV and Zond II sped toward Mars their paths passed through several meteor showers. Mariner IV survived this pelting but Zond II did not. On May 4, 1965 the Russians reported that Zond II had stopped transmitting. By that time it was only a little farther from earth than Mars I had gotten before contact was lost with it.

The Soviets launched their latest two Venus probes, Venus II and Venus III, on November 12, and 16, 1965. The Russians said nothing more about these probes until Venus II flew by Venus and Venus III crashed there, nothing has been heard about them since.

They Organized The G.A.R.

WILLIAM J. RUTLEDGE
... He Thought Of It

BENJAMIN F. STEPHENSON
... He Got It Going

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO today veterans of the Civil War and their friends were standing at the corners of the Jacksonville square talking about the dry weather and that new organization that had just started up in Decatur.

It was called the Grand Army of the Republic, a patriotic and fraternal association limited to men who were soldiers or sailors in the Union army or navy during the Civil War and who were honorably discharged.

The newspaper accounts of the new organization stated "its aims are to foster and strengthen fraternal feelings among members; to assist comrades needing help or protection; to aid comrades' wives and orphans, and to inculcate unswerving loyalty."

Some Democratic editors viewed it with deep distrust, fearing that it would turn into a Republican "humbung" of some sort.

They were 100% right. Twenty years later an Irishman is said to have observed that G. A. R. stood for "Generally all Republicans."

A historian of the organization started his account this way: Capt. B. F. Stephenson and three comrades traveled from Springfield over dusty roads to Decatur, where they rallied nine other veterans and formed the Grand Army of the Republic. The date was April 6, 1866. At one time there were 800 posts in Illinois, with a membership in excess of 48,000.

Benjamin Franklin Stephenson was a physician in Springfield when the Civil War broke out and he was almost immediately appointed surgeon of the 14th Illinois Volunteer Infantry, which trained at the Morgan county fairgrounds in May and June, 1861.

The three comrades who were with him as they returned a hired rig to livery stable in Decatur for a friend were Rev. William J. Rutledge, Jacksonville Methodist minister and late chaplain of the 14th Illinois regiment; John M. Snyder, former Jacksonville grocer and then personal secretary to Governor John G. Oglesby, and Capt. John A. Lightfoot, Jacksonville baker and candy maker, late of the 101st Illinois Infantry, the Morgan county regiment.

They went to Decatur to organize the first post because Gov. Oglesby, a Decatur man, said that the proprietors of the Decatur Tribune were all sterling Union patriots and that they could be trusted to print the ritual in entire secrecy, and not be in too much of a hurry for their money.

Suggested By Rutledge

Rev. Rutledge was always credited as being the man who first suggested organizing such an association. Stephenson said the idea came from his "tent-mate and bosom companion, Chaplain Rutledge of the 14th."

In a letter later written by William Camm from his farm home west of Murphysville, Camm affirmed Stephenson's statement. Indeed he went much further, asserting that it was in the rear of Vicksburg on May 29, 1863, that Rutledge suggested to the surgeon that "the soldiers so closely allied in the fellowship of suffering, would, when mustered out of service, naturally desire some form of association that would preserve the friendships and the memories of their common trials and dangers. They agreed that if spared they would together work out some such project."

He Should Know Camm, formerly a Scott county school teacher, was probably right, especially about the date. For on May 29 he was in arrest in quarters for having ignored a specific order given to him by Grant. Camm, then lieutenant colonel of the 14th, had taken out a squad of men for night patrol and had gotten himself in serious trouble, losing more than half of the patrol. The dead included a man from Waverly and four Morgan county men were either wounded or captured, or both. The more Grant thought about Camm the more he fumed, and finally he cashiered the Lt. Col. out of the regiment. And the Lt. Col. went to Washington and reminded Lincoln that he had painted his portrait, in oil, in Winchester during the 1858 campaign. But Lincoln just listened, and that was the end of the Lt. Col.'s career.

Rev. Rutledge was the pastor of the East Charge, Jacksonville Circuit, in 1861 and lived in a small house where the postoffice is now.

From The Old Dominion He was born in Virginia in 1820, from a family of fine stock that produced the author of the laws of Virginia and of Georgia, a governor of Virginia and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. When a youth his family migrated to Illinois and he studied at the Ebenezer Academy northwest of Jacksonville under the eminent Dr. Akers.

A good looking man and a powerful extorter of the times he married a Pike county girl. They had 12 children.

During 53 years of labor with the Methodist church he filled many appointments in west central Illinois. You name the church, he was probably its pastor at one time. He was the only chaplain to an Illinois regiment who reenlisted, staying with the 14th all the way through.

Keenly interested in education Rutledge was an early trustee of the Illinois Conference Female Academy — now MacMurray College — and Northwestern University. He also served as chaplain at the "new" penitentiary at Joliet and at the Soldier's and Sailor's Home in Quincy.

At the age of 70 he married a Menard county woman and they had a son. But he was a widower when he died of pneumonia at his home on South Main street at the age of 79.

His grave at East cemetery is marked by a bronze plaque placed there 20 years ago by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War. It recognizes him as one of the founders of the G.A.R. and the first chaplain of the Illinois department.

Each year, just before Decoration Day, the D.U.W. has a wreath placed on the grave.

Doctor In Springfield

Dr. Stephenson was a partner in a drug store and practicing medicine in Springfield

FOR A MAN who died discouraged and broke Dr. Stephenson certainly has some grave marker in Rose Hill cemetery east of Petersburg. The monument was placed by the National Encampment, Grand Army of the Republic.

The front of the monument is decorated by a giant replica of the G.A.R. badge. This badge, incidentally, was designed by Charles S. Cole, a Jacksonville printer who served in Co. I, 14th Illinois Infantry. After it was officially accepted, Cole moved to Chicago, spent the rest of his life making badges, buttons, emblems, banners and everything else that required the official insignia, and became most wealthy.

Under the badge are these words: B. F. Stephenson, founder of the Grand Army of the Republic. Organized April 6, 1866. Died Aug. 30, 1871, aged 47 years, 10 mos., and 27 days.

Col.'s career.

when the war broke out. He was born in Wayne county, Ill., in 1822 and graduated from Rush Medical College in Chicago. He married a Petersburg girl and practiced there before moving to Springfield.

At Decatur Stephenson rounded up nine other comrades and proceeded to organize the first post of the G.A.R. He was elected chaplain, Lightfoot adjutant, Snyder quartermaster, and Rutledge chaplain.

There were 13 veterans present, but the history of the organization shows only 12 charter members.

Anybody superstitious in those days?

Palmer Wins Post

Stephenson was in the chair when the Illinois State Department was organized in Springfield July 12, 1866, by 50 men who claimed they represented 39 posts. Later on when it became most important to be an early member there were so many Republican candidates in the land who claimed that they were at the first meeting that the largest building in the city could not have accommodated more than half of them.

Stephenson wanted to be named commander, but it was given to Gen. John M. Palmer, Carlinville attorney who was the first colonel of the 14th Illinois Infantry.

Stephenson presided at the national convention held in Indianapolis Nov. 20, 1866, and again he thought maybe he'd be chosen commander, but the prize went to Gen. S. A. Hurlburt of Belvidere, Ill.

Both Palmer and Hurlburt made much political hay with the help of their comrades in the G.A.R.

Stephenson got the organizing bug out of his system and returned to the practice of medicine in Springfield. One of his biographers wrote:

"He was a popular and successful physician. With his opportunities he should have soon secured a lucrative practice, but he lacked that tenacity of purpose and thorough devotion to his profession so necessary to success, and was inclined to put off duties and responsibilities that were in any way unpleasant. He was a poor manager in financial affairs, feeling rich with a few dollars in hand and evidently caring little when he had none."

No matter what troubles assailed him his fund of good nature was unyielding, and to the last he was sanguine of great results from some projected enterprise. . . . He was easily moved by tales of distress, and freely gave to the poor his own services and orders for medicines without thought of recompense.

"He had dreamed of a grand organization of veterans, moving en masse, a potent influence in moulding and fostering public sentiment in favor of those who had 'borne the battle'; that should secure recognition of their services in places of honor and profit; and, while preserving and strengthening the bonds of comradeship, should be a help to all who had followed the flag, and to the widows and orphans who needed a helping hand and a sympathizing friend."

"After years of unrequited toil, disabled and discouraged, Dr. Stephenson removed his family from Springfield to Petersburg, and died at Rock Creek Aug. 30, 1871, in his 49th year. His remains were moved from Rock Creek cemetery to Rose Hill Aug. 29, 1882."

It took several years to bring the G.A.R. to strength and eminence, but even Stephenson never dreamed that some day it would have 490,489 comrades enrolled, every one of them a strength in politics.

"Out of sight, out of mind." We don't see that. We lost our wallet the other day and it hasn't been out of our mind since.
A conductor out West recently demanded two tickets of the Siamese twins, but the twins insisted they were one, and as the conductor couldn't eject one without the other he let them pass.
A vag says of women: "To her virtue we give love; to her beauty, admiration; to her hoops the whole pavement."

Why is the letter K like a pig's tail? Because it is the end of pork.

April, 1866
The steamship England, which arrived at Halifax from Liverpool April 9, had one hundred and sixty cases of cholera on board. There were forty deaths during the passage. The ship had 1,200 steerage passengers. Of the 300,000 people married in England in 1863 only 182,408 were able to sign their names. Two scientific gentlemen of Prague recently analyzed a green dress, and discovered not less than two ounces of arsenic in it. It follows, therefore, that green dresses, which are now becoming "all the rage," are absolutely poisonous.
English engineers have recently been in Paris to obtain the authorization of the French government to have soundings and measurements made on the French coast, with reference to the construction of a tunnel from Calais to Dover. The distance would be at least 30 miles. It appears to be an impossible engineering problem.

From the Jacksonville Journal: A JUBILEE AND RATIFICATION MEETING — Arrangements are now being made to secure the presence of Gov. Oglesby and others for a Grand Jubilee in the Public Square of this city on next Saturday afternoon to ratify the action of Congress in the passage of the Civil Rights Bill. Particulars in the Daily JOURNAL, which commences Saturday morning.

HUMILIATION AND PRAYER — Governor Oglesby has issued an eloquent and appropriate proclamation, appointing the 15th inst. a day of prayer and humiliation throughout the State. The 15th is the anniversary of the death of President Lincoln, and a most fitting occasion for religious devotion.

AN ATTEMPT TO BURN THE SPRINGFIELD JOURNAL OFFICE — Some scoundrel set fire to a shed in the rear of the Springfield JOURNAL building on Tuesday night last, evidently with the design of destroying that office. This is a pro-slavery Democratic argument often resorted to, but seldom convincing.

DANVILLE COMMERCIAL — We have received the first number of a very neatly printed and ably edited paper of the above title, published at Danville in this State. It is edited by Prof. P. D. Hammond, a very able and cogent writer.

Fred Douglass, the noted and now renowned Negro orator, addressed large crowds in Strawn's Hall Saturday and Monday. His lecture on "The Assassination and Its Lessons," for so grave a subject, was a model of terse and touching elegance. His second discourse, "The Negro and Civil Rights," failed to generate universal appeal.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: The long promised political lecture by the Negro radical leader, Fred Douglass, came off at Strawn's Hall on last Saturday evening, under the supervision of Sigma Pi literary society. At night the hall was filled and Illinois College doubtless made a good thing of it in the way of greenbacks.

The Illinois College Junior Exhibition came off on yesterday. The weak abolition effusion usually served up on these occasions under the supervision of Prof. Sanders no longer attracts attention outside of the immediate friends of the pupils.

The opening of the St. Louis railroad appears to have given great impetus to the spring business in this city. In every department of business and trade unusual activity is manifested. Building in various quarters of the city has already commenced, and during the season we may expect to see a large number of new buildings erected.

We learn that there will be no peaches grown in this section the present season. A black mare hitched inside of the yard at the residence of Wm. Burke, with saddle and bridle on, was taken by some thief on last Sunday evening. The fence was broken down and the mare led over.

We hope to receive our new type in time for the inside of our next week's issue.

Mr. N. Y. Stanley, a gentleman of intelligence, means and enterprise, has started a dairy farm on the Reed place, adjoining town, and proposes to supply our citizens with milk. This enterprise has long been needed.

Jacksonville can boast of having a regular omnibus line established to accommodate city travel. Look out for a horse railroad next.

Spring Finds Lower Part Of State Dry

URBANA — Unless April rains are plentiful, the southern half of Illinois will start the spring growing season with a moisture deficiency, according to William C. Ackermann, chief of the Illinois State Water Survey.

Most of Southern Illinois has had below normal rainfall throughout the winter, and the three-month totals for January through March have been 2-to-4 inches below normal, he said. Total rain for March was only one inch in extreme Southern Illinois, or three inches below normal.

March rain totals were 1-to-2 inches in Central Illinois, or from 1½-to-2 inches below normal, but varied from 1-to-3 inches in Northern Illinois is near normal for that area. Groundwater levels also are below normal in southern sections of the state, Ackermann said.

Levels of groundwater in March were below their 10-year averages by over one-half foot in east-central and south-eastern sections and by 2½ feet in the southwest. However, the natural water table remained above normal in the north and west, and was near normal in the central area.

Water supply lakes and reservoirs have shown little change during the last month, Ackermann reported. All but a few are practically full.

Slight decreases in storage were noted at Lake Springfield, Lake Decatur and Lake Bloomington, but all three were within a few hundredths of a foot of spillway crest elevation.

Groundhogs A Bother? Learn To Handle Them

Groundhog control demonstrations will be held Monday April 18 at three locations in Morgan County, Farm Adviser George Trull announced last week.

The demonstrations are being sponsored by the Morgan County Soil and Water Conservation District, Soil Conservation Service, and Cooperative Extension Service.

Richard Coon, of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, will be in charge. At two of the locations, the use of gas cartridge will be demonstrated.

Groundhogs cause considerable damage to crops and to buildings in Morgan county. However, they are recognized as game animals and a permit is needed before applying control measures.

Groundhog burrows should be gassed during the spring months when they are active in rearing their young. At this time they resent intrusion by other animals and will keep them from their dens.

All interested persons are invited to attend any one or all of these field meetings. The program at each location will last about an hour. Those attending will get information on how to obtain permits and on obtaining gas cartridges for use on their own land.

The day's schedule: 10 a.m. — Russell Points farm, 3 miles south and 1½ miles east of Waverly.

1 p.m. — C. J. Lonergan farm, 2 miles east and a half mile north of Woodson. (Control in and under buildings.)

3 p.m. — William Hadden farm, quarter mile west of Passavant hospital.

Nasser Losing Control In Mid-East, Africa

CAIRO (AP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser's revolutionary influence in the Middle East and Africa appears to be waning.

Major policy statements by the 47-year-old Egyptian leader once were sufficient to sway events far beyond Egypt's borders. Today they stir routine interest.

Nasser himself complained in a speech to a political rally that a recent Arab heads of government meeting in Cairo failed to take up his favorite themes of "imperialist conspiracies" and "the war in Yemen."

"The Arab heads of government meeting," Nasser declared, "spoke of everything in their recent meeting in Cairo but issues of importance."

Such a public complaint would have been unthinkable only six years ago, say analysts long on the Egyptian scene.

Conference Idea Fails

One example of Nasser's current status in the so-called non-aligned world was the failure of his attempts last month to summon an emergency nonaligned conference in Cairo. Egyptian sources said the conference would discuss "imperialist, neocolonialist attempts to thwart the Arab revolution."

The only solid responses came from Ghana's ousted President Kwame Nkrumah and Guinea's President Sekou Toure. Other nonaligned capitals indicated willingness to send foreign ministers, but heads of state pleaded other commitments.

When the negative response became evident, government-controlled Cairo newspapers suddenly disclosed Yugoslavia's President Tito also was in on plans to hold the conference. Up until then, the same papers had implied the initiative was entirely Egyptian.

The best-informed sources in Cairo believe such a bid from Nasser would have gained swift acceptance only a few years ago.

Ten years ago, Nasser's political influence penetrated deep into neighbor states. Today he is virtually isolated.

Libya, Egypt's oil-rich neighbor to the west, keeps a wary eye on Nasser and resisted the move last year to break relations with West Germany over arms aid to Israel and with Britain over the Rhodes issue. Egypt championed the move to rupture ties with both countries.

Tunisia is home grounds for Habib Bourguiba, whom Nasser labels an imperialist stooge.

The overthrow of Algeria's Ahmed Ben Bella was a jolt to Nasser. Personal bonds between the two helped account for an expanded Egyptian influence in Algeria. An Egyptian source calls current relations between Nasser and President Houari Boumedienne "correct but not warm."

Morocco refused to break with Britain and Germany.

No Support Here

The new rulers in Syria, though socialist, are not Nasser supporters. Iraq's President Abdel Salam Aref, while outwardly friendly, cannot be regarded as a certain Nasser ally.

In Africa, Nasser's political picture is out of the picture. The two have argued privately, but publicly supported the desirability of exporting revolutions.

It is in Yemen that the contest between Saudi Arabia's King Feisal and Nasser may be decided. They take opposite sides in that country.

Nasser has sworn to keep Egyptian troops in Yemen for 10 years, if necessary, to support what he calls the "republican revolution against feudalism and reaction."

The war is costly for Egypt and not popular among Egyptians. Further, it could fit Feisal's strategy to keep some 70,000 Egyptian troops tied down in Yemen in an unpopular war for a long period of time.

It is what Cairo sources call "Egypt's Viet Nam" and Nasser cannot find support in any of the neighboring states where his influence once was powerful.

WWI BARRACKS AUXILIARY MEETS AT VFW POST

Mrs. Edith Nortrup presided at the April 8th meeting of the Auxiliary 385 of World War One Barracks held at VFW Home.

Mrs. Amy Dodsworth was program conductress. General order 9 was read by secretary Mary Lahey. Mary Mellott had a good report on hospital work being done.

A memorial service was conducted for deceased members. A silent auction was held and a good sum realized.

The next meeting will be May 4th at the VFW.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

As we pay increased auto insurance premiums, read about higher insurance rates, regret the massacre on our highways, drain away lives and dollars, it is natural to ask, "What can I do?"

Try the following:

1. COOPERATE WITH governmental and private programs to reduce accidents and encourage others to do so. Make the subject part of everyday discussion.
2. SET STRAIGHT family, friends and acquaintances who seek something for nothing through groundless or exaggerated claims.
3. ENCOURAGE ALL citizens to serve on juries when called, to render verdicts based upon the law and evidence they hear, not upon sympathetic, emotional appeals.
4. TESTIFY TRUTHFULLY in court as a witness to an accident and do not seek to avoid being a witness. Otherwise, justice cannot be gained.

Wealthy South Barrington Prefers Quiet To $375-Million A-Smasher

By DAN MCNULTY
SOUTH BARRINGTON, Ill. (AP) — There are people in South Barrington, a wealthy community of 300, who would rather live in peace and quiet than with a $375-million atom smasher.

And apparently they will. Not everyone is against the 200-billion volt nuclear reactor — a political plum sought by more than 100 communities. But there are enough to make Gov. Otto Kerner withdraw the community from consideration by the Atomic Energy Commission for the research facility. They are afraid that construction of the nuclear accelerator would destroy the quiet atmosphere of the residential area. "We moved out here for privacy and fresh air and that's about it," said Arthur J. Hogg, village president. "You might say they're purely selfish reasons, but what else is there?" Most of South Barrington's residents and those from the surrounding communities of Barrington and Barrington Hills are well-to-do. Zoning regulations in the area prohibit anyone from putting up a house on less than a five-acre tract. Unimproved lots range in value from $2,000 to $5,000 an acre. Many of the leading citizens in the area are executives who commute 30 miles of Chicago. Typical of the reaction is that of Don McNeill, the host of the daily radio program, the Breakfast Club, who said from his 45-acre estate: "There must be a lot more desirable places than this for this particular project. As in the old story, I'm in sympathy with the movement, but let 'em go somewhere else."

Weston also has some 300 residents but few, if any, are as well off as their counterparts in South Barrington. They want the atom smasher and the $300 million it is expected to pump into the economy annually. South Barrington and Weston are among six sites from which the AEC has said it will make its final selection. Businessmen in the Barrington area began a move this week to have the AEC reconsider South Barrington as a site, but the attempt seems doomed to failure.

Roy Crumrine, a Barrington real estate agent, said Tuesday that owners of more than 5,000 acres in South Barrington have agreed in writing to sell their land to the AEC for the smasher.

Gene Graves, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, has said the AEC would need only 3,000 acres for construction of the facility although it likely would want another 2,000 acres for future development.

Kerner withdrew South Barrington from consideration after a meeting at which state business and political leaders failed to convince the opposition their fears were groundless.

Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., blamed the situation on "wealthy Republicans." Douglas and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., have worked in Washington to get the facility into Illinois.

"Gov. Kerner has done everything he could, but it was the power structure of the wealthy Republicans there who want to preserve their five-acre estates," Douglas said.

Cubans Still Enjoying Havana's Night-Life

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban capital isn't the wide-open touring spot it used to be but many Cubans still enjoy themselves in spite of Communist control over business. Movies are as popular as ever and increasing numbers of concerts, cultural events and sports activities draw big crowds.

There are also a number of low-life clubs — places where girls are liberal in their attention to the male customer — and waterfront dives, gambling, prostitution and abortion have been officially outlawed. Doing Big Business

Havana's famous outdoor Tro-pi-cana is the strong favorite among the better cabarets, particularly on weekends. Other clubs doing big business are those at the big hotels, the Habana Libre (formerly Havana Hilton), Habana Riviera (formerly Hilton Riviera), the Capri and the Nacional.

They offer musical reviews with a lot of girls, risqué jokes, dining and dancing.

There is no cover charge as such, but the first drink (usually rum because no Western whiskey is imported) usually costs about three pesos (officially $3), with succeeding ones costing from 60 cents to a dollar.

Havana's annual carnival spread out over five weekends included a large assortment of elaborate, brightly lighted floats, Afro-Cuban bands, scantily clad dancing girls and rhythmic dance groups. There were huge turnouts in the old part of the city for the Saturday and Sunday parades and the almost nightly street dances.

Ballet, both classical and modern, has always been popular among the theater-going crowd. Other attractions are musicals, plays, exhibitions of everything from paintings to agricultural machinery, sports, writing and poetry contests and ceremonies commemorating birthdays or death days of revolutionary heroes.

Have Russ Entertainers The Soviet Union has a continuous shuttle of show business talent in here, including Mos-cow's Bolshoi Ballet. The Soviet Union also sends a large number of athletic teams to compete against the Cubans.

The bulk of the films are from Communist countries — with Spanish subtitles. Cuba has been trying to reach some sort of agreement with Mexico to resume its supply of Mexican movies, very popular here. Several old ones are still around.

Television has a mish-mash of programs, with amateur hours, documentaries, educational shows, ancient American and Mexican movies, filmed news programs and Castro speeches taking up most of the viewing time. There are two channels.

American-made animated cartoons, acquired before the Cuban-U.S. break, are favorites of both children and adults. Crowds of enraptured adults gather before television screens in hotel lobbies every afternoon to follow the adventures of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig and Felix the Cat.

The diplomatic colony keeps busy attending its own functions, but there has been a decrease in the number of government people attending these parties of late. This is due to a sweeping purge and investigation of high-living, heavy drinking "false revolutionaries."

Merritt WSCS Names Officers

MERRITT—The W.S.C.S. of the Merritt Methodist church met April 4 with Mrs. Verrena Berry as hostess. Mrs. Mary Simpson served as assistant hostess as Mrs. Sallie Simpson was unable to attend the meeting.

The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: president, Mrs. James Kitzelman; vice-president, Mrs. Robert Simpson; secretary, Mrs. Russell Hornbeek; treasurer, Mrs. Floyd Rolf; Christian social relations, Mrs. Karl Longenbaugh; program materials secretary, Mrs. Sallie Simpson; promotions secretary, Mrs. Flora Rolf.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lonnie Kitzelman. The group sang, "I Need Thee Every Hour" and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Roll call was answered with Bible verses. The minutes of the March meeting were read by Mrs. Mabel Hornbeek, the treasurer's report by Verrena Berry.

The United Church Women's Clothing Drive will be held again this year and any good, useful clothing is acceptable. The drives will be held on May 8, August 21, and in November. The lesson for the day was given by Mrs. Karl Longenbaugh. A dialogue was given by Mrs. Flora Rolf and Mrs. Evelyn Longenbaugh.

During the business meeting a love gift of $2 for the 25th Anniversary Assembly offering was approved. The group also voted to donate $5 to the Cancer Fund.

It was announced that a conference will be held in Jacksonville on May 31, including a training school for officers.

Reports and letters from missionaries were read by Mrs. Flora Rolf.

Members voted against serving dinner at the church on primary election day in June. The next regular meeting will be held May 3 with Mrs. Howell Hitt as hostess. Mrs. Minnie Hitt will have charge of devotions.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Verrena Berry and Mrs. Mary Simpson served refreshments.

Jim Kitzelman and Robert Simpson visited Lee Berry Tuesday night.

of the plate. He varies the target area by watching the traits of the batter, who may alter his position in the batter's box during the course of a game. These nuances make the catcher a thinking man. "I designate the location of every pitch," he says, "high, low, inside or outside."

Of course, it occurs to a skeptic that some pitchers might be nearsighted and not see which way the finger is curled.

"Then," says Edwards, "they should get glasses." In 1960, the year before he came up to the Reds, Edwards and Maloney formed a brilliant minor league battery for Nashville.

"Only," says John, "I used to have my doubts about Jim at night. I'd signal and he'd nod. Then I'd sit back and wait for a curve and he'd throw a fast ball that almost took my head off. It was no fun."

Fortunately, Maloney, who also moved to the Reds in '61, was persuaded to wear contact lenses when he pitched. Otherwise, even the tools of ignorance might not have kept a smart young man like John Edwards in the target area.

IC Tennis Team Shows Promise This Season

The Illinois College tennis team expects to have an improved season this year as newcomers and returning lettermen show greater promise than a year ago.

As a result of pre-season challenge matches, seven of the eleven who started try-outs are still battling for the six positions.

"We expect to be better this year primarily because freshman Peter Clark (Lexington, Mass.) has taken over the number one spot. Junior Don Gullquist (Westchester, Ill.), who was first last year, will be in the number two spot, and sophomore Pete Kelsey (St. Louis, Mo.) has moved up to third from sixth due to his vast improvement," coach Bill Merris says.

The returning lettermen are: Michael Gerber of Haverhill, Mass.; Don Gullquist of Westchester, Ill.; Peter Kelsey of St. Louis, Mo.; and Gerald Lucas of Creve Coeur, Mo.

Newcomers are: Alan Bradish of Jacksonville; Peter Clark of Lexington, Mass.; and Anthony Garrison of Peoria, Ill.

Sophomore coed Janice Vespa of Springfield, Ill., has been practicing with the team, but it is uncertain as to whether she will play in competitive matches. "If any team which faces us plays a woman, then she will probably play in one of the matches," Merris says.

FROM THE BEGINNING: These three runners are shown at the gun on the start of the 880 yard varsity relay. Each runner in the relay goes 220 yards. Shown here is Jacksonville's Jim Bruner (middle) who got a 15 yard lead and teammates Frank Wildhagen, Dennis Portee and Abe Brown kept it for one of JHS's four first places as the Crimsons barely whipped Wood River and Quincy in a triangular meet held Friday afternoon.

BIDDING TIME: JHS's Larry Angelo is leading the half mile at this point, near the end of the first of two laps, but Quincy's Art Bulechle (2nd here) later came on to win the event by a large margin. Angelo came in second, while teammate Gary Byers finished fourth.

Writers Picking Reds And Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and the Minnesota Twins will open the World Series in Cincinnati next October according to a sampling of opinion among baseball writers covering the spring training camps.

If the writers are correct, the Reds will beat out the San Francisco Giants in a wild scramble that also will involve the Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies.

A poll of 43 writers, scattered among the 20 camps, picked the Twins to repeat in the American League in a tight finish with the Baltimore Orioles and Detroit Tigers. The Twins and Tigers each drew 13 first-place votes but Minnesota's total of 372 points was good for first and Detroit's 362 left them third, one point behind Baltimore.

Hull's Knee Big Question Mark

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull's temperamental knee again was a conversation piece as the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings spruced up Friday for their second Stanley Cup semifinal round game here Sunday afternoon.

Hull, the Hawk star who smashed three regular season National Hockey League scoring records, needed a pressure bandage on his left knee after the Hawks took a one-game lead with a 2-1 victory over the Wings in Chicago Stadium Thursday night.

"It's the same old problem," said Hull, injured when side-swiped by Detroit's Gary Bergman just as the second period ended.

"It bothered me in the final period quite a lot, but I don't think it's any worse than the last one I got," said the Golden Jet, who suffered severe injuries to both knees last season.

The team physician, Dr. Myron J. Tremaine, agreed with Hull's view that the injury appeared to be a sprain, "not serious—not yet."

Hull, who slammed home one of the two Chicago goals Thursday night, is expected to be blasting away at the Red Wings again Sunday afternoon at the stadium.

The match, starting at 2:30 p.m. EST, is the first NHL playoff game ever telecast nationally. It launches a series of at least three, and possibly as many as five Sunday cup games to be telecast by the National Broadcasting Company.

Meantime, Montreal's defending cup champions seek their second straight playoff victory against Toronto at Montreal Saturday night.

Chicago, Cleveland and New York also drew at least one pennant vote.

Believe Dodgers Writers Apparently the Writers believed the late start of Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale after their 32-day holdout, would hurt the Dodgers' chances. The defending World Series champs were placed fourth and polled only five votes for first.

The writers forecast six-club races in each league. St. Louis and Chicago followed the top six in the National with Houston and the New York Mets bringing up the rear. The Mets were doomed to 10th once more despite their fine spring training season.

The Yanks, perennial champs in the American League, drew only one first-place vote and were picked to finish sixth again. California's Angels were ranked seventh, followed by the also-rans — Washington, Boston and Kansas City — in that order.

All polls will go out the window Monday and Tuesday when they get down to serious work with the bat and ball. The 10-game opening program, spread over two days, is expected to draw about 320,000 fans.

Senators Open First Washington gets a chance to hop away first when it opens Monday with the special presidential extravaganza. However, Cleveland is the opposition and Birdie Tebbetts plans to throw Sam McDowell against the Senators.

Cincinnati also gets a chance to steal a day's march by opening at home Monday against the Mets.

The Tuesday program in the American: Kansas City at Minnesota, California at Chicago, Detroit at New York and Baltimore at Boston.

There will be three night games Tuesday in the National including the Atlanta opener against Pittsburgh before a sell-out crowd of 50,983 fans. Philadelphia will be at St. Louis and Houston at the defending champion Dodgers' home park.

In the only day game it will be Chicago and Lee Durocher at San Francisco.

NORTHERN NIPS INDIANA
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Second baseman Ernie Birgilli drove in three runs on a homer and a double to lead Northern Illinois to a 6-5 baseball victory over Indiana Friday.

Jack Campbell hit a two-run homer for I.U. in the fifth inning. The game was Northern Illinois' season opener and the loss dropped the Hoosiers to an overall 7-5 season mark.

LAND ON SOCCER FIELD
CAIRO (AP) — While about 40,000 spectators waited for the start of the Zamalek-Tirsana soccer match Friday a glider suddenly dropped from the sky and made a forced landing in the middle of the field.

The pilot was slightly hurt, but the spectators were untouched. The glider was immediately removed and within a few seconds the players came trotting in.

Al Davis Named New AFL Boss

HOUSTON (AP) — Al Davis, the American Football League's dynamic young man, was named Friday to succeed Joe Foss as the AFL commissioner.

Davis gave up a long-term contract as coach and general manager of the Oakland Raiders in accepting the post, a move that had been widely expected.

After guiding the AFL since its inception in 1959, Foss stepped aside Thursday with a resignation reportedly resulting in part from smoldering club owner dissatisfaction over loss of the Atlanta, Ga., area to the National Football League.

Davis, 36, told newsmen repeatedly Friday that solutions to problems involving the NFL are not among his immediate goals and objectives.

"My goal is to make the AFL the best league in pro football," he said. "My first job is dedication to the growth of this league."

Rushes To Accept Davis interrupted a Las Vegas, Nev., vacation to rush to Houston Thursday night to accept the appointment at undisclosed terms. His Oakland contract had four years to run and he also held an option for a five-year renewal.

"I left security but I do love this league and believe in its future," he said.

Oakland officials immediately promoted Davis' offensive backfield assistant, John Rauch, to head coach, and named Gordon (Scotty) Stirling as general manager. Stirling has been public relations director.

Ralph C. Wilson Jr., league president and owner of the Buffalo Bills, told a news conference the club owners had been attracted by Davis' organizational and administrative abilities.

In just three years, Davis transformed Oakland from a floundering cellar dweller to a Western Division contender.

"Al's background is football at all levels," Wilson said. "He has gained recognition as a coaching genius and an astute businessman."

Put Crimp In Career "I realize we are putting a permanent crimp in a brilliant 16-year coaching career which has carried Al Davis to the pinnacle of the pros but I'm equally certain he is embarking upon a career as commissioner which will be even more illustrious."

Wilson said the two-day league meeting was devoted practically entirely to selection of a new commissioner. No action was taken on expansion but Wilson said new franchises will be a major item on the agenda of the league's regular summer meeting in late June.

Prior to moving to Oakland, Davis was an assistant three years under Sid Gillman with the Los Angeles — San Diego Chargers. He earlier had been an assistant under Webb Ewbank with the Baltimore Colts of the NFL and had coached at Adelphi College in Garden City, N.Y., Fort Belvoir, Va., The Citadel, and the University of California.

McCarver Will Bat Clean-Up

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst said Friday he will place catcher Tim McCarver, a .276 hitter last year, in the clean-up position in the batting order for the National League opener next Tuesday night.

McCarver has batted .309 in exhibition games. Last year he hit 11 home runs and had 48 RBIs.

Schoendienst had tagged outfielder Alex Johnson, acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies in a trade last winter, for the fourth spot in the batting order. But Johnson has hit only .267 this spring, and Schoendienst dropped him to seventh.

Jacks Claim Slim Edge

The JHS track team won its most impressive meet of the season thus far in squeezing past strong Wood River and Quincy High squads in a triangular meet held at the JHS athletic field Friday afternoon.

The Crimsons won the meet despite taking only four events to ten individual blue ribbon finishes by Wood River. Quincy won three events. The winning margin came on eight seconds and six thirds by the Crimsons, as Wood River managed only one second and three thirds. Quincy posted eight seconds and five thirds.

Jacksonville finished with a total of 65 points, two and a half better than the Oilers. Quincy finished close to the front-runners with 50½ points.

Wood River's Kevin Grimsley was by far the outstanding performer in the triangular, held in occasional rain showers. Grimsley gained 20 of the Oilers' points himself, winning all four events he entered. The speedster won the 100 yard dash, handling JHS's Jim Bruner his first defeat of the spring by three strides, the pole vault, the triple jump and the broad jump.

Wood River also had the only double winner of the meet, Bob Schlemer, who won the 120 yard high hurdles and the 180 yard low hurdles.

Individual winners for Jacksonville were Mike Matijevich in the discus, Steve Simonds in the shot, Wes Hillgoss in the two mile and the 880 yard varsity relay team of Bruner, Frank Wildhagen, Dennis Portee and Abe Brown. Steve Tavender garnered seconds in the high hurdles and the triple jump, setting a new school record of 39'3".

Wood River led the Crimsons by three and a half points with only the discus event still going. Matijevich's fourth and Roger Patterson's first gave the winners six points and the meet.

Phillies Sign Roger Craig

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-five-year-old Roger Craig was signed Friday by the Philadelphia Phillies in an effort to bolster their relief pitching staff.

Craig, who has pitched for the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Mets and Cincinnati, was released by the Reds earlier this week.

The Phillies need bullpen help because their No. 1 relief pitcher, Gary Wagner, has been bothered with a sore arm all spring.

STILL IN GIVE FORM
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A former marathon runner ran Thursday from East St. Louis to Waterloo, Ill., and back in nine hours and 22 minutes.

Jack Cory, treasurer and manager of the Illinois Central-East St. Louis Credit Union, said he bettered his time of three years ago.

In 1963, he made the same run in 10 hours and 30 minutes. Cory began running in 1922. In the basement of his Belleville, Ill., home he has gymnastic equipment on which he works out daily.

TROTTERS BACK IN HINCKLEY
HINCKLEY, Ill. (AP) — The Harlem Globetrotters' 40th basketball season will come to an end Sunday in Hinckley — the town where the Trotters played their first game together almost 40 years ago.

The clown princes of basketball will play the Rockford Majors in Hinckley where they made their debut Jan. 7, 1927. Hinckley is some 60 miles west of Chicago.

Before his death March 15, Trotters' owner Abe Saperstein had decided to return to Hinckley as a sentimental gesture.

SINK OR SWIM

NEW YORK — (NEA) — One night Lew Burdette, now with the California Angels, was pitching for Milwaukee and Norm Larker was with the Dodgers.

Larker was convinced Burdette was throwing spitballs and he told plate umpire Frank Secory about it.

"No," Secory replied, "those are sinkers."

"Sinkers," snapped Larker. "One of those sinkers just splashed me in the eye."

Hospital Notes

Roy Beird and Myron (Buck) Albers, both of Bluffs, are patients at Passavant hospital.

BROKEN WINDSHIELD REPORTED FRIDAY

Cecil Walker of Thayer reported a windshield broken in his 1961 model auto parked on East Douglas just west of North East Street about 6 o'clock Friday evening. Walker said nothing in the car appeared to be missing. City police investigated the incident.

CARS COLLIDE ON NORTH MAIN

Two cars collided at 1:22 p.m. Friday at the intersection of North Main and Douglas causing minor damage to both vehicles. A northbound auto driven by Frederick A. Curtis of 802 North Clay and a westbound auto driven by Joyce M. Hazelwood collided. Mrs. Hazelwood told police she stopped at the stop sign and pulled into the path of the Curtis auto but did not see the approaching auto in time.
